LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address and signature. A phone number is needed for verification only. Anonymous letters are not accepted.

Spreading cheer

Dear Editor:

At this season of especially warm goodwill, I would like to express thanks to our Carmel-by-the-Sea Post Office, to all the members of the staff who serve the public so efficiently and graciously.

The atmosphere of good cheer strikes visitors from other cities, other countries, as distinctly unusual. Where, indeed, is there a post office that was decorated with orchids, as ours was during Peggy Purchase's tenure? And how many branches have a staff that appears in jolly costumes of the season, with decorations to match?

Inevitably the long lines will grow still longer the next few weeks, and everybody's patience will grow shorter. But let us give a salute to the postal workers who do all that is humanly possible to spread the seasonal good cheer.

Water wariness

Dear Editor:

Your Dec. 1 editorial properly focused attention on the apparent inconsistency in permitting new water connections at a time when we have to impose water rationing.

The fundamental problem lies in the water management district's system for allocating water to the six cities and county. Each of the seven jurisdictions is allocated a specified amount of water that it may use for current consumption and future development as it sees fit. New water meters are still being approved in all the jurisdictions, because each of these jurisdictions still has unused water remaining in its allocation.

Unfortunately, there is a difference between this paper water in the allocation and the real water we now must ration. The water management district has long allocated more water than it really has. The damaging environmental consequences of this policy have been apparent for some years. Now, the consequences for our municipal water supply have also become painfully apparent to everyone.

This difference between real water and paper water comes as no surprise. Nevertheless, enormous pressure has been put on the water board in recent years to INCREASE rather than decrease the amount of water that it allocates. As chairman of the water board during 1986 and 1987, I bore the brunt of that pressure.

The city of Carmel-by-the-Sea sued the water district in 1986 to try to obtain an increased allocation. In April 1987, the mayors of every peninsula city signed a letter to the water district asking us to increase the water allocation for Carmel, specifying that this water should be taken from the drought reserve. Sen. Henry Mello put the full weight of his office behind these pressures to increase the allocation. They all chose to ignore obvious but inconvenient facts about our limited water supply and our environment.

Alan Williams, speaking as the official spokesman for the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea, cited statistics purporting to show that a 1976-77 type drought occurs, on average, only once every 233 years. Therefore, dipping into your drought reserve wouldn't hurt. The water board was accused of using the water allocation system to artificially and unnecessarily limit growth on the Monterey Peninsula. That was only 18 months ago! How convenient it is to forget.

The water board's rejection of the mayor's request to raid your drought reserve is what provoked formation of the so-called "mayors' slate" of three candidates in the November 1987 water board election. Their goal was to change the policy of the water board, and they succeeded. Two of those candidates won seats on the water board, replacing directors who had represented very different views.

This is part of the history of how we got to where we are. Where do we go from here? I suggest a focus on four things:

1. Cooperate with the rationing program. As an elected director on the water board, I voted against the present rationing plan. I voted against it because it is unfair to those who have already conserved, not because rationing isn't needed. However, I recognize there is no "good" way to impose something as unpleasant as water rationing. The board is elected by the public, and the majority of the board has spoken, so we should respect its decision.

2. An EIR on the water allocation system will be completed early next year. The question of increasing or decreasing the allocation will be debated at that time. We should insist that 50 percent of conservation savings be put into drought reserve, rather than be re-allocated for additional growth as is now permitted. The mayors' lobby, predictably, will strongly oppose this, as it means reducing water allocations that are already nearing their limit.

3. Redouble efforts to obtain the required permits for a new dam as soon as possible. The dam truly is the best long-term solution. We obviously need the additional water for ourselves and for the environment, not just for planned growth. In November 1987, 63 percent of voters supported the water district's plan for a New San Clemente Dam. Now that we are experiencing, once again, the consequences of an inadequate water supply, shouldn't there be 100 percent community support?

4. In future city council and water board elections, be informed, and support candidates who share your views on water management.

Bureaucratic nightmare

Dear Editor:

Having attended meetings of the Monterey Peninsula water board on two occasions earlier this year, I was dumbfounded by a board bogged down in bureaucracy. The board members were in total deference to the thinking of their own staff which seemed to me more concerned about perpetuating their own welfare than providing water.

Somehow or other the water board staff has managed to convince the water board members of its reliability. No wonder we will have rationing.

What has impressed me most in recent news articles about the water shortage is the good sense of the public. It has made several suggestions for various practical and low-cost water projects which would eliminate the need for rationing altogether this year and for future droughts, regardless of whether or not a new dam is built.

The amazing thing is that the water board has not risen about a bureaucratic nightmare centered on building a dam in order to get around the need for rationing. It sees no need to take action on any of the reasonable ideas presented by well-informed members of the public and by water experts representing the public. The mystery is why not.

Keeping tabs

Dear Editor:

Now that the 1988-89 rainy season is about to begin (hopefully), why doesn't the Pine Cone revive its olden-time, but abandoned policy, of printing a precipitation table in its weekly issues during the winter months? I am sure that Carmel residents would like to know the amount of rain for each day in the week being reported, the total for the year to date, a comparison with last year's total as of that date, and what the total to date should be for a normal precipitation year.

The precipitation table printed by your competitor over the hill leaves a lot to be desired. The data are published on a hit-and-miss basis and are often in error.

The Pine Cone can do a better job for Carmel residents by contacting the city department keeping records of rainfall amounts and publishing the figures each week until our rainy season ends in April/May.

It's official: Water rationing begins Jan. 1.

By NANCY HILLS

WATER RATIONING will begin Jan. 1.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board unanimously approved Dec. 12 a resolution that institutes mandatory water rationing on the peninsula beginning New Year's Day.

At the same meeting, the board, in a 5-1 vote, approved an ordinance which maps out the Phase III rationing plan for a 20-percent cutback.

Director Karin Strasser Kauffman was absent due to a serious horse riding accident on Saturday. (See related story this issue.)

Director Dick Heuer cast the lone dissenting vote in protest of the plan's provisions, which he states "favors" water wasters while it punishes those who cut back 10 percent or more earlier this year.

Heuer said he is very much in favor of rationing, and in fact believed mandatory measures should have begun last April.

Last spring, the water board requested the community to voluntarily reduce its water consumption by 10 percent.

Director Paul Davis, agreeing that there were aspects to the rationing plan that were not "fair," said no rationing plan is completely fair.

The district has worked on the plan for quite some time and had done almost everything it could to eliminate inequities, Davis said, and it was time to approve it.

To implement the plan, the board voted for a 2.05 percent surcharge on water bills for administration and enforcement.

The surcharge will be terminated when the district has raised enough money or when rationing ends.

Over 18 months, the surcharge would garner $384,000. About $95,000 of that is designated for educating the public, and the rest for administration.

Administration includes sending out a postcard survey to the 35,000 water connections within the district to establish the type of water use — type of home, number of residents, type of business and other data needed to evaluate water allotments.

The district will send the postcard "around the first of the year," according to a district spokesperson.

Administration also includes developing a program for California-American Water Co.'s computer to implement the rationing plan.

The rationing plan calls for residents and businesses to cut back their consumption by 20 percent from the same billing period 12 months prior to the rationing billing period.

For example, a household's recorded water use on the water bill for March 1989 would have to be 20 percent less than the consumption in March 1988.

Because of that setup, those who cut back by 10 percent or more at the beginning of 1988 will have to reduce more than someone who did not conserve.

"I am particularly disturbed because our board assured people that this wouldn't happen," Heuer said. "We have a led them to think they are naive and gullible for having believed our district. It will be very difficult in the future to get voluntary rationing."

To avoid penalizing those who voluntarily rationed, the water district has included a "lifeline" ration.

If the household cannot reduce consumption by 20 percent, the district staff will compare the household water use with a per-person allotment.

That allotment allows a single-family detached home to use 82 gallons per day per person living in the home. A single person living in an apartment receives an extra ration and can use up to 122 gallons per day.

In apartments and condominiums with more than one person in residence, the ration is 46 gallons per day for each person. If only one lives in the apartment or condominium, the ration is 68 gallons per day.

The water district, based on problems experienced during the 1977 rationing plan, decided to give single-person residences the extra ration because the house or apartment still requires the same amount work, i.e. mopping floors, watering plants, visitors.

HEUER ARGUED that the per-person ration was not enough and that the board should go back to water use records from two years ago — 1987.

Water district general manager Bruce Buel told the board that he agreed "going back two years is fairer," but California-American Water Co.'s accessible computer records only went back 18 months.

To check records 24 months back would require that it be done by hand. After a hurried conference on the landing of the stairs with Cal-Am District Manager Larry Foy, Buel came back and reported that many of the records were on microfiche as well as computer tape.

"If they are on microfiche, then it will be next to impossible," and very expensive, Buel said.

Heuer disagreed, stating that people should not have to ask for fairness; other boardmembers were concerned that automatically going back two years would drain funds and time.

"I want it to be as fair as possible, but it comes to the point that the cost" exceeds the gain, Director Billy DeBerry said.

After much debate, the board decided to include a two-year search of records for those who appeal a penalty.

The district board also approved the creation of a seven-member appeals panel. Each water boardmember would nominate a panelist.

The actual appeals board will consist of three members rotated from the seven panel members.

"They must be people who are willing to take a lot of abuse, but always be willing to be fair," board chairman Nick Lombardo said, with a touch of irony in his voice.

THE PENALTIES for violators also caused a bit of controversy.

As approved by the board, the first violation will result in a warning only.

If during the second billing period the problem has not been corrected, then the business or residence is charged for each unit it is over its ration.

The penalty begins at $25 for the first two units of water in residential and one unit in commercial over the ration. A unit is 748 gallons, the method used by Cal-Am to meter water use.

The penalty then increases by $25 after the first two units over the ration. The third and fourth units over the ration will cost $50 apiece plus the $25 apiece for the first two units over.

On commercial water bills, which are issued every month, it also increases by $25 a unit, but by the first unit $25; second unit $50, plus the $25 for the first; third unit $75 plus the $75 for the first and second and so on.

The same sequence is followed for residential except the $25 increase is applied to every two units because residential water bills are issued bi-monthly.

The maximum penalty for a single unit is $250.

Heuer objected to the penalty, stating that for $25 people can basically buy an extra unit of water.

"People who can afford it will just buy another unit of water," he said.

Land trust study identifies critical viewshed parcels

By DAVID LELAND

SEVERAL YEARS of speculation ended last week when the Big Sur Land Trust released a study identifying 100 critical viewshed parcels along the Big Sur coast and Highway 1.

"Protecting Scenic Lands of the Big Sur Coast," a $75,000 study funded by the David and Lucile Packard Foundation, further clarifies which land is available for purchase under the terms of Proposition 70.

Passed in June, Proposition 70 authorized $776 million in state bonds dedicated for the protection of open space and wildlife.

Of that money, $32.5 million is earmarked for Monterey County, with $25 million slated toward the purchase of open space along Highway 1.

All of the land purchased under the terms of Proposition 70 will be labeled permanent open space.

"Before people said, 'I can see the property so it must be in the viewshed,'" said Brian Steen, Big Sur Land Trust executive director. "But there's a lot of other things that go into it."

While the county is not in actual possession of its share of the bond money, Joe Cavanaugh, principal administrative analyst, said the funds will be deposited early next year.

"We hope to have the money available to us in February," he said. "We'll make purchases in late February or early March."

Under state law, it is illegal for a jurisdiction to receive bond money unless those funds will be spent within six months, Cavanaugh said.

Cavanaugh said that the county is attempting to receive its money on a quarterly basis, based on projections of property acquisition.

Any property owners who find their land deemed "critical viewshed" in the Packard report, and want to sell the land, should notify the county or the Big Sur Land Trust, he said.

"Anyone who does have a piece of property, we encourage them to let us know," Cavanaugh said, referring to the finite amount of money contained in Proposition 70. "Once the $25 million is gone, it's gone."

Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman lauded the process that has led to the final steps in buying the viewshed property.

"The heart of the issue is local control," she said. "The challenge was to do that by balancing environmental concerns on one hand and property rights on the other."

Strasser Kauffman added that the Packard study is only the opinion of the Big Sur Land Trust and not that of the county or Coastal Commission.

Nevertheless, the study fills a void that existed, because the county could not directly identify viewshed property because that would be "prejudging" the land.

"What we've ended up with is a narrative that describes these (critical viewshed) characteristics," said Steen of the 93-page study. "And we have a detailed methodology of how it was done."

IN ORDER to come up with their recommendations, the makers of the Packard study followed a seven-step plan.

The first step was to identify the visible area from selected points along Highway 1, using a detailed map provided by the county in its local coastal program.

Next, all lands with restricted development potential was excluded.

These included lands administered by the U.S. Forest Service, state Department of Parks and Recreation, military and state university property.

Some private lands on the coast are already protected by scenic and conservation easements granted to the land trust, county or state Coastal Conservancy.

Step three was to identify areas committed to concentrated development.

Described by the county as "rural residential," these areas include the Otter Cove subdivision, Kasler Point/Rocky Point, Palo Colorado Canyon, Coastlands and several others.

The county has also exempted from its public viewshed policy several "rural community centers."

These include Big Sur Valley, Lucia, Pacific Valley and Gorda.

During step four the land trust identified areas with extensive tree cover in numerous canyons, drainage areas and high ridges.

Next, the study took into account the effects of distance.

"The more distant a structure or topographical feature, the less effect it has on visual perception," the study observed. "Certain exceptions are prominent ridges and peaks that are highly visible from numerous viewpoints or important elements of outstanding views."

Areas greater than two miles inland were given less concern in the study.

Step six identified the slope of the land.

The county currently has restrictions governing lots with an excess of 30 percent slope, thus those parcels were given a lower level of concern.

The final step was to come up with the adjusted public viewshed or the areas of the highest visual sensitivity.

Steen said a copy of the study can be obtained from the Big Sur Land Trust offices in downtown Carmel.

He added that negotiations are currently underway with four "willing" property owners, with land values totalling $1.5 million.

Strasser Kauffman's condition improving after serious accident

By DAVID LELAND

FIFTH DISTRICT Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman's condition continued to improve this week, after suffering serious injuries Saturday during a horseback riding accident.

While waiting to ride in the annual Santa's Fly-In parade in Carmel Valley, Strasser Kauffman's borrowed Peruvian horse reared and then fell on top of her, pinning her to the ground.

The supervisor suffered a concussion, three fractured ribs and a compression fracture of the spine in the mishap.

"Her spirits are good and she's feeling much better," said aide Sandy Smith, who added that Strasser Kauffman was moved out of the intensive care unit at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

At press time, Strasser Kauffman was not taking telephone calls or seeing visitors in her room at Community Hospital.

But Smith said she is mentally alert and grateful for the generous response of her constituents and fellow workers.

"She's interested in the activities of the county and she's been delighted by all the phone calls and flowers she's received," Smith said.

Smith added that Strasser Kauffman is an experienced rider and had recently sold her horse, which was why she was riding a borrowed mount.

Smith said the doctors have not found any injuries that will permanently alter the supervisor's way of life.

She is also anticipating that Strasser Kauffman will be healthy enough to be sworn in for her second term come Jan. 3.

Last Tuesday, Dec. 13, marked the last supervisors meeting of the year, so Strasser Kauffman will not miss those gatherings.

The remaining supervisors paid tribute to Strasser Kauffman during this week's meeting.

"I'm very glad that the accident was not as bad as it could have been," said 2nd District Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck. "I'm looking forward to her speedy recovery to the board — she's a very strong woman."

Strasser Kauffman's peers on the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Board also paid tribute to her on Monday night.

In addition to serving on the water board, Strasser Kauffman is active in the fight against offshore drilling, and is on the county Cultural Council, Big Sur Multi-Agency Advisory Council, the Monterey-Salinas Transit board and the county finance and capital improvements committee.

Shipnuck sets priorities as new supes chairperson

By DAVID LELAND

REVAMPING THE county budget, defining health-care costs and initiating county program reviews are all high on the list of 2nd District Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck's priorities for next year.

And as new chairperson for the Monterey County Board of Supervisors, Shipnuck will indeed have a good chance at having those matters heard.

As chairperson of the board, a position which rotates in numerical order from district to district each year, Shipnuck will prioritize the weekly agenda and run the meetings.

Shipnuck will replace outgoing chairperson 1st District Supervisor Marc Del Piero.

"If I can accomplish part of that next year, I'll be very pleased," said Shipnuck, 46, who is serving her third term as supervisor for the Salinas area.

A long-time advocate of health care and help for the homeless, Shipnuck only recently became deeply involved in the area of finance.

During 1985-86 she chaired the County Supervisors Association of California (CSAC) task force on the homeless and during 1988 served on the National Association of Counties (NACo) AIDS task force.

She also chaired NACo's public health subcommittee and its tobacco task force.

But it was after serving as president of CSAC during 1988 and hosting meetings on public finance issues and chairing a committee to pursue legislation in taxes and finance, that she was appointed to oversee a national committee on finance.

"It's a challenge; it's a growth time," said Shipnuck, referring to her position on the Tax-Exempt Bond Action Committee.

That 19-member committee, composed of supervisors and public officials nationwide, is exploring various methods of bond financing which changed under the new tax law.

What this means to Monterey County is a chairperson who understands finances and wants the public to become part of the budget process.

Shipnuck wants to revamp the budget, so it will include explanations, understandable summaries, charts and show the items listed in order of subject, rather than by dollar amount.

"The public will have an easier time educating itself," she said. "This (budget revamp) is a real personal goal and priority."

SHIPNUCK ALSO called 1989 a "critical" year for Natividad Hospital, a county-run facility in Salinas.

She added that because of the large number of indigent immigrants who recently were granted amnesty by the government, it is time for federal assistance for the hospital.

"We've really reached our maximum in our ability to maintain indigent care," she said, adding that she is conferring with Rep. Leon Panetta in an attempt to secure funding.

She is also seeking state funding, money from the hospital foundation and state loans. Also, instead of regularly reviewing departments, as is usually the case, Shipnuck said she will be reviewing specific programs from within each department.

For example, if she wants to look at the county's adult out-patient mental health program, she will not inspect the entire social services department.

Shipnuck also sees several immediate concerns for the peninsula.

Topping that list is the desire to see the Carmel Valley Master Plan functioning properly.

"I want to get through the first round of development permits," she said. "I am hopeful we will be able to work through any problems."

She said that while traffic may be a concern, she does not see water as an obstacle, despite the current drought-like conditions.

"Water should not be an impediment because we've based our buildout on our allocation," she said. "We tried to be very careful about which developments we can look at with the water that's available."

Shipnuck also is in favor of revamping the county's relationship with its library system early next year.

Currently the board is considering cancelling its contracts with the four cities that it funds annually. Carmel receives $92,000 each year. (See related story in this issue.)

"I'm anxious to see what comes out of the discussions with the cities," she said, referring to talks scheduled for early February. "I also want to take a hard look at where we have real unmet needs."

Instead of funding the four cities, Shipnuck wants to spend that money to increase literacy.

"I'd like to see literacy have a higher emphasis, not just for children but for adults," she said. "And I'd like to see us (county) have a coordinated system, not a competitive system."

Library officials ponder future without county funds

By DAVID LELAND

FACING A dramatic reorganization, Harrison Memorial Library officials this week pondered what services would be like without county funding.

Monterey County supervisors have made it clear that they plan to either eliminate or phase out their annual payments to the four city libraries that serve residents from the county.

This year Carmel's library garnered $92,836 of the county's $471,251 allotted in contract payments. Also benefiting were city libraries in Pacific Grove, Monterey and Salinas.

"If we don't get $92,000 from the county we will have to cut something," said Lani Premier, acting library director. "Or, the city will have to underwrite."

Currently the city pays for operational bills such as staff payroll, utilities and cleaning. The county money goes toward books and supplies.

Fremier pointed out that the Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees could provide some funding in case the contract is cancelled — but that would be limited.

Having recently financed a large portion of the new library annex, the board's coffers are not exactly brimming over, according to spokesman Jack Billwiller.

"There will be some money left (after the annex), but not very much," he said. "We get an occasional gift, but it's not something we can count on."

Currently the only revenue that comes directly to the library board is from the copy machine in the library.

And while the board of supervisors chastised the four cities receiving contract payments for getting more than their fair share, upon further examination those charges become murky.

Under Proposition 13, the county levies a flat rate of $1 per each $100 of assessed property value, which eliminates special library taxes, according to Nick Nicolai, assistant county auditor/controller.

Those funds are then divided many different ways, with Carmel and the county library receiving their allotment.

Last year, for each $100 collected, about $1.13 went toward the county library fund, Nicolai said.

Nicolai added that an argument could be made for or against the four libraries that serve city and county residents.

"It really is a gray area in terms of who benefits," he said.

Reacting in a token display of dissatisfaction, the Carmel City Council last week delayed including Carmel in a county service area for emergency paramedic services.

And while it would not be politically prudent for Carmel to permanently to exclude itself from the service district, with 72 percent of Carmel voters approving inclusion in November elections, the council surely made its point.

"It was their way of showing objection to the county's plans to discontinue funding to the libraries," said 4th District Supervisor Sam Karas, a staunch supporter of the paramedic issue. "(But) paramedics should not be a part of the controversy, because we are dealing with human lives."

He added that he hoped the setback would be temporary.

"I can understand their feelings, but I hope they will put that aside," Karas said.

City Administrator Doug Schmitz pointed out that the council will "look into all its contract relations with the county."

In other words, it was not the EMS specifically that the council objected to, but it is questioning the entire breadth of city-county contract obligations.

FREMIER SAID that with 43 percent of her library's circulation going to residents of the unincorporated area, the county should be at least partially responsible.

"The county should do something to keep the relationship going," she said, adding that the majority of students using the library are county residents. "Our county patrons are disturbed because they are sure we are going to lock them out."

She also wondered what the county would do with the $471,251 it allotted in contracts if those deals are cancelled.

"There's a real concern that if the county saves the money to the detriment of the library that serves all the people, what's to say it will go back to the county library," she said. "It would be disturbing to move back because we have a good system now."

Nicolai said that any money specifically earmarked toward the library system from property taxes will remain there.

The board has requested the county library staff to prepare a report on how that money would be used to better the county's library system.

The only change in library funding could come from supervisors, who this year, for the first time, dipped into their general fund to meet contract obligations. That money could be used elsewhere.

Fremier said city librarians are meeting today, Thursday, Dec. 15, to formulate a reply to the board.

During the week of Dec. 19-23, city librarians, city administrators and the library board will meet in an effort to develop strategy.

Also, with the board of supervisors scheduled to hear the matter in February, city librarians will meet county librarians and discuss the issue with the news media and friends of library groups during the first week of February, Premier said.

City council makes Handley purchase official

By NANCY HILLS

FIVE SIGNATURES and it was done.

On Thursday, Dec. 8, four members of the city council and one appointed resident signed papers authorizing the city's approximately $3 million purchase of the Thomas Handley property.

The city has agreed to pay $2,542,000 for the little more than 1-acre site and approximately $500,000 more for site improvements, cost of administering the purchase and a reserve fund.

Councilmember Elinor Laiolo, who opposes the acquisition, stepped down from the legal proceedings and was replaced by former Annexation Committee member and attorney Dick Little on the board of directors of a joint power authority created as the financial vehicle for the sale.

from the installment sale. The money is tax-free because the property will be owned by a non-profit organization and used for non-profit purposes.

The $500,000 down payment he receives is taxable.

The three technical resolutions signed by the councilmembers, in brief, gave investment banking consultants and bond counsel legal power to sell "certificates of participation" and set up the installment sale to the property owner Handley.

"It is a nice price and it is a useful and beautiful property," Mayor Jean Grace said as she signed the documents.

"I felt like a new age must be happening in Carmel when we are becoming an activist council rather than a reactivist (one)," Councilmember Ken White said the day after the meeting.

He added that he believed the purchase was a good investment.

"I think in 10 years the price on that property will be double what we paid for it. We won't know the impact for a few years, but I think the people that come after us will be pleased at what we did. We have to pay the bills, but then the property will be free and clear."

COUNCILMEMBER Elinor Laiolo stepped down from the proceedings, reiterating her opposition to the city's purchase of the nearly 1-acre site located between Junipero Avenue and Torres Street and Third and Fourth avenues.

Laiolo outlined her reasons for her opposition to the purchase in a letter she submitted to the council, stating she would not participate as a director of the Joint Powers Authority.

The remaining councilmembers appointed Carmel resident Little to take her place as a director of a non-profit "joint powers authority," the financial vehicle created Thursday for the acquisition.

"I felt like a new age must be happening in Carmel when we are becoming an activist council rather than a reactivist (one)."

— Ken White
— City councilman

Over a 10-year period, the city will pay out, in total, another approximately $1 million in interest to Handley on installment payments and on certificates of participation.

Certificates of participation are similar to bonds. The $950,000 tax-exempt issue by the city is to raise the money for a $500,000 down payment, the site improvements and reserve fund.

The bond underwriters, Chilton & O'Connor of Los Angeles, are scheduled to issue the certificates of participation and begin the installment sale Dec. 28. The interest rate for the certificates will be set that day.

Special arrangements by the city give residents of Carmel-by-the-Sea a three-hour jump on the general public to purchase the certificates. Interested residents need to call the underwriters to get on a priority list. (See related story.)

The city can pay the certificates off in five years if it is deemed financially feasible.

The city has agreed to pay Handley 8.5 percent on the $2,042,000 million he receives

In her letter, Laiolo listed four reasons for her decision:

- She believes that land use on the property should be regulated by provisions of the city code and ordinances.
- Purchase of any land involving large sums of public funds should be subject to a vote of the registered voters of the city.
- A clearly defined use — in contrast with a general use — should be established prior to city acquisition.

Grace stated that she too would have liked to have seen it go to a vote "but there was no time. Mr. Handley wanted the sale completed by the end of this year."

Former Mayor Clint Eastwood sent out an unofficial postcard survey last year which asked residents if they wished the city to buy the property. About 80 percent responded "yes."

Laiolo also objects to the removal of the Hayward Lumber Co. lumberyard from the property. Hayward Lumber Co., a for-profit business, had to vacate the site for the certificates and installment payments to qualify as tax-exempt.

"When you say you believe in residential-serving businesses and then take an action that removes a business that serves the residents — as well as $22,000 in business tax and the property tax — I don't think the action really represents that point of view," Laiolo told The Pine Cone in a later interview.

The tax-exempt status of the installment sale and certificates eliminates leasing the property to any for-profit business, including a privately constructed garage.

According to the city's investment counsel — Charles Adam of San Francisco-based Jones, Hall, Hill and White — the city can hire a private business to operate a facility, but the city itself, as the debtor, cannot make more than 10 percent of the annual debt payment on any operation.

That would include fees from a garage or parking lot, both uses being investigated in an ongoing environmental impact report on the R-4 zone where the property is located.

That restriction will continue for the entire 10 years while the installment payments are being paid off.

IT WAS necessary for the city to form a Joint Powers Authority to issue the certificates because a state law mandates that a municipality cannot go into debt for more than its annual revenue.

The city council therefore set up the authority to technically issue the certificates and enter into the agreement with Handley. Members of the city council act as the directors.

The city of Carmel, in turn, will "lease" the property from the joint powers authority and those lease payments will pay off the installment loan and the certificates. Payments are expected to total about $440,000 a year. Installment payments to Handley account for about $330,000 of the $440,000.

Mayor Jean Grace stated she selected Little to replace Laiolo because he is an attorney and had demonstrated an ability to understand technical details while chairman of the Annexation Committee.

The council voted on Dec. 6 that until a long-term use is decided upon, to turn the property into a 70-space-maximum parking lot with some city storage facilities and two small parks. One park will be located on the northeast corner of the property, which has a spectacular panoramic view of Point Lobos, the city and the Pacific Ocean.

The city will tear down one shed that blocks the view and probably will use the remaining sheds on the property for city storage.

Greg D'Ambrosio, director of administrative services, is conducting a meeting from 2 to 4 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 28 to show three different plans for landscaping and design of the parking lot. Citizens are encouraged to attend to give their input on the design.

Carmel citizens have first priority in Handley issue

AT THE request of the city administrator of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, residents of the city will be given a three-hour priority order period to purchase certificates of participation being sold by the city to finance the purchase of the lumberyard property.

After the priority order period, the certificates will be offered to the general public by the underwriter of the securities.

Interest in the certificates is tax-exempt. Payments will be made by the city annually over a 10-year period. (The certificates may be paid off at five years if the city elects to.)

Anyone interested in an advance opportunity to purchase certificates should call either William J. O'Connor or Irma Haro at the Los Angeles offices of Chilton & O'Connor, 1901 Avenue of the Stars, Los Angeles, CA 90067, (213) 203-0966.

Interested residents should call as soon as possible to get on the priority list. Orders will be taken on a first-come, first-served basis. A representative of the underwriter will call back on the morning of the day that the securities are priced to advise of the pricing of the various maturities and to accept orders. At this time, pricing is expected to take place on Tuesday, Dec. 20 or Wednesday, Dec. 21.

Winkler gets a cool response from residents group

By NANCY HILLS

IT WASN'T exactly Mikhail S. Gorbachev meeting Ronald Reagan, but actor-director Henry Winkler meeting members of the Carmel Residents Association and the Northeast Carmel Neighborhood Association had its moments.

Rather than a summit meeting, it resembled an amicable but energetic Olympic ping-pong match with Winkler's paddle flying quick and sharp. Equally quick was the nine-member audience, who could not be persuaded that moviemaking in Carmel was such a good thing for the town.

CRA boardmember Clayton Anderson said later that the low turnout was because the movie is not a "big issue."

Winkler wants to shoot portions of a major motion picture on the peninsula, including a few scenes in Carmel.

The nine residents that showed up Dec. 12 for the joint meeting are concerned about the impact on the town.

More advertising for the area, they told Winkler, something they feel the city doesn't need.

Winkler is directing the Walt Disney Pictures film about a small beachtown policeman and his police dog. The film, Turner and Hooch, will star Tom Hanks.

The amount of time they will spend in Carmel-by-the-Sea is still being determined.

Winkler told the "unpacked" crowd in the Bingham Room at Sunset Center that he understood their concerns and plans to keep the actual impact as little as possible for Carmel.

"Hopefully, a little bit of my reputation has proceeded me here," Winkler said. "I'm a man of my word."

"It is true that a film company can be very disruptive, I won't try to tell you otherwise," he said. "But the attitude makes the music — it all starts at the top. There is a tremendous amount of arrogance in a film company, but we will overcome that. There will be no problem because we will come with respect."

Resident Linda Anderson responded by telling Winkler that it wasn't the disruption of the shooting schedule that worried them the most, it was displaying scenes of Carmel all over the nation.

"It will cause an influx of more tourists," she said, "Even if you don't call the town in the movie 'Carmel' everyone will know where it is located."

"We are going to stay away from local landmarks," Winkler countered.

Clayton Anderson assured Winkler that they had heard he had a good reputation in the movie industry.

Barry Smith of the Northeast Carmel Neighbors Association scored a point when he told Winkler it wasn't only the movie, but the promotional activities that accompany films, such as television shows, magazines, newspapers and other media that go in for Hollywood-watching.

Winkler said he will control the publicity as much as possible, even controlling the reporters who can come on the set.

Another concern was raised by CRA boardmember, mystery writer and former scriptwriter Robert Campbell, who told Winkler it was a matter of setting a precedent.

"It would be very difficult if Carmel said 'yes' to your film, to say 'no' to the next request," Campbell said. "Precedent is very important in city government."

And many companies would like to film in Carmel, Campbell said.

Winkler added that Carmel is famous already and "it is hard for me to take the responsibility for that because Carmel is an institution" all over the state. Way before this opportunity came along, I wanted to do a film here."

Campbell also pointed out what has happened to other areas shown in films, such as the lake used in On Golden Pond.

"It changed everything, real estate values exploded, everything," he said. "Sure, we are not expecting the same thing here but it is more publicity."

"I understand completely what you are saying," Winkler said.

Referring to the recent exposure Carmel received having Clint Eastwood for mayor, one member of the audience said "you have to understand we have just gone through a shattering experience."

In one famous incidence bad publicity was generated by the so-called "ice cream cone issue," where it was reported all over the world that you could not eat ice cream in Carmel.

"It wasn't even true. You could always get ice cream here," she said "Go back and publicize that!"

"I will, I will," Winkler quick to assure her.

Other areas were suggested:

"What about Solvang?" one person said.

"Solvang is adorable," Winkler responded promptly, but not what he was looking for.

"I'm just hoping we can have some fun together," Winkler said.

In the end, most agreed that Winkler was very nice, very charming and funny. In fact, they told him they'd love to have him visit, "but please leave your cameras behind."

SENIOR LINE

By Bill Schneider

Leave it to RIDES

Q. MY wife and I are both in our 70s. She does not drive and until recently I had no problem driving my own car wherever we wanted to go. I have cataracts which are becoming progressively worse and will soon require an operation plus I have noted other problems in driving which have led me to put my car up for sale and I will not renew my driver's license early next year. Can you tell me what transportation is available and what it costs?

DG, Castroville

A. THE RIDES Program is operated by Community Transit Services (CTS) (Tel: 754-2804 or 373-1393). They operate vans throughout the county and in some areas contract for taxi service for the disabled and elderly who cannot use the bus. The fare for a one-way van trip is $1 in most of the county but there are some variations in North County. The scheduling of van trips is limited so by all means call RIDES for more information. RIDES can also furnish information on the cost and availability of out-of-county medical purpose trips by using volunteer drivers.

Q. I just read in the paper where the San Jose police captured a purse snatcher who made his grab and escape while riding a bicycle. I congratulate the San Jose police but worry for myself and friends since I have a dear friend who was recently mugged in a public parking lot. Have you any suggestions?

TS, Marina

A. I too read the article and applaud officers Jackson and Cannell for their excellent work. I had a similar question several months ago and can only repeat my previous suggestions. Try to shop with one or more friends. Ask the store manager where you shop about security in the parking lot and carry-out service. If these services are not already provided, keep after the manager since I know it is not always easy to change stores. Have government and any other regular monthly checks sent directly to your bank or savings and loan. The banks have forms and will take care of it for you.

Pay for groceries and other purchases by check. Only carry your keys, check book, identification and a small amount of cash when shopping to minimize the loss of difficult to replace items. Carry your belongings in an inner pocket to foil the purse snatchers. Finally, if you are mugged, be observant so you can furnish the police a description of your assailant and his car or bicycle.

Much more good advice is contained in the pamphlet "Crime Prevention Tips for Seniors" put out by the Attorney General's office in Sacramento and obtainable at most local police departments, libraries and senior citizen clubs.

(Need information on senior affairs? Write Senior Line, Area Agency on Aging, 1184 Monroe Street, Suite 10, Salinas, Ca. 93906 or call 372-7662. Senior Line needs your name, address and phone number but these will be withheld on request. Printed letters may be edited to meet space requirements.)

Holiday safety tips

IT IS always an unfortunate tragedy when fire or serious injury strikes a family. But during the holiday season, this tragedy is even more devastating.

Activities surrounding holiday traditions and celebrations bring many new types of hazards and hazardous activities into our homes and lives. Local and national statistics show an increase in residential fires, and injuries both in the home and on the highways during the holiday season.

Local fire departments, supported by the Independent Insurance Agents of the Monterey Peninsula are running a Holiday Safety Campaign for the public. The campaign focuses on Christmas tree safety. The following safety tips are offered:

- Choose a fresh tree: a fresh Christmas tree will be green with needles that are hard to pull off, not shedding.
- To keep it fresh: cut off 2 inches from the trunk and put in a sturdy, non-tip water holding tree stand.
- Fill the tree stand with water and keep it full by adding water every day. Without adequate water, a warm room will dry the tree out rapidly.
- Place the tree in a safe location: locate the tree out of normal traffic areas, away from exits, the fireplace, heaters, vents and electrical appliances. If young children are present, place the tree where it cannot be pulled over.
- Decorations and trimmings can be dangerous, too: never use candles on or near the tree, or other evergreen trimmings.
- Lights should be UL approved and in good condition. Check light strands for cracks, frayed or bare wires.
- Do not use "indoor" lights outdoors, and vice-versa. Do not use more than three strands of lights per extension cord.

• Turn off all lights when you leave the house or retire for the night.

• Never use electric lights on a metallic tree, it could cause a serious electric shock. To avoid this danger, use a colored spotlight below or above the tree.

• If children are present, avoid decorations that are sharp or breakable. Keep trimmings that resemble candy, or with small moveable parts out of reach, so children are not tempted to swallow them.

• Dispose of wrappings and tree properly: after Christmas, dispose of wrappings and boxes as soon as possible, as they create a fire hazard. Do not burn wrappings or excess paper in the fireplace.

• The Christmas tree should be disposed of before it becomes dried out. Remove the tree from the house. Do not burn the Christmas tree or other evergreens in the fireplace. Most disposal companies will pick up Christmas trees along with normal trash pick-up free of charge. Cut in 4 foot sections.

'The Fonz' thrills a packed house at Carmel High

By DAVID LELAND

AFTER RECEIVING a less-than-enthusiastic welcome from a group of Carmel residents Monday morning, Henry Winkler was swept off his feet by ecstatic high school students later that afternoon.

In town to pitch his new film, Turner and Hooch, a portion of which he hopes to film in Carmel, Winkler was visibly impressed with the thunderous greeting he got in the Carmel High School gym.

"I met nine citizens this morning who did not want to see my face," said Winkler, referring to a meeting with representatives of two resident associations. "But you know how to make a person feel loved."

Needless to say, the applause could be heard all the way to Point Lobos.

While some high school students were not even born when Winkler, 43, first popularized the role of "Fonzie" on the hit television series Happy Days in 1972, it appears that most youngsters could relate to the rebellious-but-good-natured motorcyclist he played on the show.

The sitcom ran 11 years and totalled 255 episodes, Winkler said.

The actor, a Yale graduate, revealed with pride that the black leather jacket he wore in the show is now displayed at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington D.C.

During the one-hour assembly, Winkler told the students that he wants to use some of them as extras during the movie, while others may be called on to make Halloween costumes that they could wear in a scene in the movie and could earn them prize money.

To be produced by Walt Disney Pictures, Turner and Hooch will star Tom Hanks (Big, Punchline and TV's Bosom Buddies) and Nancy Travis (Married to the Mob).

The script, which is set in the mythical town of "Cypress Beach" is the story of a small-town policeman and the "ugliest junkyard dog in the world," and is being written by Dan Petrie, Jr. (Beverly Hills Cop and The Big Easy).

Winkler has been attempting to convince businesspeople, residents and the Carmel City Council that his production team will not disrupt Carmel's way of life too much. (See related story.)

If given permission, Winkler, who will direct the film, will shoot in Carmel, Pacific Grove, Monterey and several coastal areas starting in February.

WINKLER TOLD the students that hard work is the secret of success — and all of them have the same tools he had to become successful.

"I have found that tenacity, preparation and knowing what you want to do, allows you to do anything," he said, adding that he graduated in the bottom of his high school class and only later found out that he had dyslexia, a learning disability.

WHILE VISITING Carmel High School this week, Henry "The Fonz" Winkler took time out to give a hug and a kiss to senior Heather Arnold, as principal Marie Ishida looked on.

He further advised the students to listen to their inner feelings when making decisions.

"Your stomach speaks louder than any other part of your body," he said. "Listen to your instincts."

But most students appeared more interested in his role on Happy Days than hearing any practical advice.

Winkler said he was pleased to answer questions, but declined an invitation to sing the theme song to Happy Days, which a couple of students did prior to his arrival.

And while chided to snap his fingers the way "Fonz" does (which always garners him a bevy of females), Winkler said he was asked not to.

"Your principal (Marie Ishida) asked me not to because we'll have chaos right here in this room," joked Winkler, while Ishida shook her head and denied the allegation, amid loud boos.

Winkler also gave Arnold $20 toward her Project Community class, which is donating toys and canned goods to peninsula charities. (Mac McDonald photo.)

Winkler needed no finger-snapping, however, as was demonstrated when two girls raced onto the gymnasium floor for a hug from the "Fonz."

Winkler, who said he now enjoys attending plays, movies, playing with his children and eating in fine restaurants, said his first role was playing a tube of toothpaste in nursery school — his girlfriend Susan was the brush.

Winkler appeared to enjoy the gathering as much as the students.

"It has always been a joy for me to talk to young people about being a professional in this world," he said.

After the assembly, Winkler spent an additional 10 minutes signing autographs and posing for pictures.

CALL FOR BIDS TO CONSTRUCT LIBRARY

At next Tuesday night's meeting of the Carmel Board of Trustees it is probable that steps will be taken to call for bids for the construction of the Ralph Chandler Harrison Memorial Library on Block 69, the city's property.

Acting upon the request of the executors of the estate, Jo Mora has prepared a set of plans in conformity with Mrs. Harrison's wishes. These plans, in outline, conform more or less in style to the old Custom House in Monterey.

It is said that Charles O. Goold, owner of the stable on the block east of the library site, will remove the structure.

EDITORIAL: CARMEL IS FORTUNATE

Not content to sit back and wait for $2500 to drop out of the sky, the Carmel Art Association is going out after the money necessary to finish the new wing of the gallery. The determination of peninsula artists to increase the facilities of our fine art building, and the method they are using to raise the necessary funds shows loyalty and resourcefulness on their part. In order to help the Association to raise the required money the artists are making it possible for anybody to obtain a painting for the price of a membership. Each membership costs only $5. Nearly one hundred pictures will be thus given away. As all the pictures range in value from $200 up, the opportunity is great.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING...

Well, we fixed the old press on Friday. The shiny new parts contrasted sharply with the dull old ones, even though the elderly portions had been recently scrubbed with gasoline.

We cranked up the aging dowager and fed a few sheets through. Everything worked fine and it looked like as though we would be in great shape for this week.

I guess her nose got out of joint, though. We started to print this week and had gotten only 250 sheets off when she groaned, shuddered and stopped. Her antique parts were completely crystalized. The broken ends looked like fudge.

So, once again, the Pine Cone comes to you through the gracious courtesy of Harry Casey and the King City Rustler-Herald. May it brighten your holiday.

CONTROVERSY BREWS OVER CARDBOARD

Corrugated cardboard used to be considered waste.

Suddenly, more than one company is going after it.

The cardboard is worth about $40 for every wrapped ton that is recycled. Unbound, it is worth about $15 per ton, according to Bill Parsons, general manager of the Monterey Peninsula Garbage and Refuse Disposal District.

Loud protests were heard two weeks ago, when the John Roscelli Corporation found itself competing with an independent company for cardboard trash collection in Carmel's commercial district. Roscelli executives thought they had an exclusive collection contract here that is valid until 1981.

But the contract is for "garbage," not "trash." The valuable cardboard cartons tossed out in bulk by Carmel merchants, are considered trash. That apparently gave other contractors the opportunity to collect the cardboard.

DEVELOPERS PUSH TO BE IN VALLEY MASTER PLAN

The hearing for the Carmel Valley Master Plan in the, uh, cozy Silver Boot lounge in Salinas last week prompted the introduction of several new plans for proposed projects in the Valley.

Developers' representatives crammed the country-motif lounge Dec. 7 to show off their plans to the Monterey County Planning Commission. Others presented new twists to ancient plans. And all recommended changes and additions to the master plan.

The master plan was drafted earlier this year by a seven-person citizens' advisory committee after the master plan adopted by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors in 1980 was ruled invalid. Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver ruled that an environmental impact report on the plan should have been prepared before the plan was adopted.

"Shag" O'Rourke dies

LOCAL ARTIST and Carmel character Paul "Shag" O'Rourke, known for his murals and sketches of the peninsula, collapsed while visiting friends and died Wednesday morning, Dec. 7 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. O'Rourke, who was 52 years old, gained some notoriety in 1984 when he painted grape leaves on the window boxes outside of Friar Tuck's Restaurant, corner of Dolores Street and Fifth Avenue. The new adornment had not had planning commission approval. O'Rourke's distinctive combination of hippie and urban cowboy looks made him easily identifiable as he worked around town with his sketchbook. He was a native of Galena, Ill. where his mother lives and where burial has taken place. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Residents asked to dispose of yard debris properly

CARMEL PUBLIC Works Department reminds residents to not sweep pine needles, leaves, and twigs into the streets.

"As winter approaches we can expect our first good storm in a few weeks," said Jim Cullem, public works director. "Following such a storm, there are substantial accumulations of pine needles, leaves, and twigs on residents' property and street rights-of-way immediately adjacent to private property."

Cullem advises residents to clean up yard debris by placing it in lawn bags to be held for pickup by the John Roscelli Corp. for the next scheduled quarterly bulk pickup at the end of December.

"Our street sweeper is unable to pick up piles of debris and branches jam the vacuum tube," he said. "Also debris that is swept into the streets can clog the storm drain culverts at the street intersections and cause serious flooding problems.

"Your cooperation is much appreciated."

CARMEL... AS I SEE IT

By Betty Barron

THE YEAR was 1941. December.

Where were you?

If you were living in Carmel the sun rose each day over the gentle mountain range in the valley, streaking fringes of clouds with liquid gold light...the sky pale blue and serene over a pastoral scene. In the evenings, dodging a drift of fog, the sun turned the western horizon into a cameo sunset. Carmelites were snug and content under a canopy of pines in their seacoast haven.

Although the radio crackled with news from London, and the war in Europe continued after the heroic RAF defense of England, many Americans felt isolated from the conflict. Fort Ord continued the mechanics of military training, but few outside the post believed in our immediate involvement.

One who did was Harriette Rowntree, a young married woman who joined the Women's Auxiliary for Civilian Defense in November of that year. The auxiliary was ostensibly a group organized to control panic in case of fire in Carmel, or on the peninsula. Cedric Rowntree, Harriette's husband, was a Carmel volunteer fireman.

Civilian Defense Headquarters were set up on the west side of Dolores near Seventh next to the then Carmel Police Department, upstairs in an old building over the present Carmel Hardware store. Block wardens were chosen. One of the wardens was Martha Smith, wife of the well-known artist, Howard Smith. They were then living in what is known as the Lincoln Steffens house. (More on this in a moment.)

On the morning of Dec. 7, immediately after the news of the bombing of Pearl Harbor, Harriette Rowntree opened the defense headquarters. By noon the public began calling. For three days, with very little respite, Harriette answered calls and attempted to calm the worried citizens. The search for blackout material to comply with directives from Fort Ord was a major problem.

Mayor Keith Evans of Carmel and Fire Chief Bob Liedig were in the defense headquarters when word was received through a Col. Mack, head of the civilian defense office at Fort Ord, that the Japanese fleet was off the coast near Santa Cruz. Evacuation of coastal areas 500 feet from the shoreline was ordered.

Harriette Rowntree was stunned, but did not believe the report. She asked Mayor Evans to check it out. After some careful investigation with contacts along the coast, it was learned that the "fleet" was a company of sailboats, led by Paul Flanders of Carmel, owner of Flanders Mansion in Hatton Fields, returning from a sailing event in San Francisco. Because of the war emergency the boats were running without lights.

Cedric Rowntree, whose father was first engineer at the Carmel Sanitary District Disposal Plant, was working at the plant that day although his regular job was as a clerk at the Carmel Post Office. Suddenly, the telephone began ringing. It was Cedric's father, who had just heard of Pearl Harbor. He soon came down to the plant with a gun on his belt. Cedric went on to his volunteer job at the Carmel Fire Station, where everyone stayed awake all night listening to bulletins.

BUT, BACK to Dec. 7. Pearl Harbor.

A young Army lieutenant named Leland Cagwin, just out of West Point and stationed in Honolulu, awakened very early on that fateful day. He looked out his window at the still-sleeping city and suddenly saw a cluster

THE CEDRIC Rowntree family as they were in December 1941. Lester, named for his famous grandmother, is in front, Harriet and of black specks resembling high-flying birds in the west. In moments he realized that they were a squadron of planes. As they came nearer he exclaimed: "What are those meatballs doing here?" ("Meatballs" was the term for Japanese planes because of the rising sun emblazoned on the fuselage and wingtips.)

Seconds later, the bombs began to fall.

Cagwin turned to his young bride, Jackie, still asleep and shouted, "Jackie, get up! The Japs are bombing us! Get up!"

Half asleep, Jackie struggled out of bed. "Oh, let's not tell mother...she'll be so worried!" (Mother being Martha Smith of Carmel, whom they had left just a few days before.)

No one had to tell Mother. She was already on her way to the Civilian Defense Headquarters.

So, Carmel was prepared...had the nucleus of a defense unit. And, of course, the Japanese never attacked.

(Sometime after the end of the war, Lee and Jackie Cagwin settled in Carmel and still reside here.)

This linkage of people and events was not unique to Carmel, but for a village of this size, it was unusual.

Cedric Rowntree's mother, the renowned founder of the arboretum adjoining the Flanders Mansion, had a favorite maxim. Said she, "Everything is related." To the many young people who helped her she added, "The future is in your hands."

Walk along the shadowed pathways of the arboretum and let the plants "speak" to you. They will endure long after the buildings...and we...are gone.

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

Mea Culp II

WRITERS ARE sometimes victimized by editing or typesetting mistakes which misprint what the writer has faithfully written. Many readers have been exceedingly kind in letters pointing out grammatical errors in my columns and have politely assumed the probability of type-o's. I have tried to be candid about those errors when they are unquestionably my own. Several months have passed since I last reviewed my own columns and it seems timely to do so again.

There have been, of course, instances where inaccurate typesetting has distorted the meaning of a sentence as, for example, when the word looks came out fooks. In the column Vacuum Tube I had five lines of inexplicable italics. They remain inexplicable. In my letter to the editor, someone divided nowhere into no where and too came out to. There have been other mistakes, for which I bear no share of the blame, and which, in a column such as this one, are particularly galling to me. If I'm going to be criticized, however politely, for mistakes in grammar or spelling, I'd rather commit them myself.

I try to avoid, for example, the use of like as a conjunction despite the fact that it has been used as one since Shakespeare. It sometimes leads me into sentences which are more awkward than those I am attempting to avoid. For example, one sentence I constructed was "As is Will, Moynihan is capable of vivid language." One can't imagine how many ways I attempted that sentence or how long I struggled with it to avoid saying that Moynihan, like Will, used vivid language. After the column was printed, and I was reading it along with everyone else, it was clear as day to me that a better construction would have been "Moynihan and Will are equally capable of vivid language." Hindsight is 20-20.

Like is a preposition, and when it precedes a noun not followed by a verb there is no objection to its use, since it takes the form of a prepositional phrase.

He takes to water like a duck, but He takes to water as a duck does.

As is not always interchangeable with like. Theodore Bernstein suggests where the verb form is suppressed, as is too formal. "The adults were jumping about and generally acting (like, not as) children (act or do)." Personally, I disagree and find as preferable in formal writing.

The whole world is now aware of the two grammatical errors I made in my column criticizing the pathetic standards of television writers. Normally, I am required to suffer such humiliations only in private correspondence.

I opened one of my columns on the Constitution with, "When we get ourselves into trouble..." I dislike the verb to get in all its forms, yet I find myself occasionally stuck with it. In that case I could have said, "When we find ourselves in trouble..."

On the news the other evening it was announced that nearly 75 percent of Fortune 500 executives who were men had difficulty with spelling. Women executives were substantially better at spelling than were the men. No one had to tell my wife that. She's been correcting my spelling for years and can claim substantial improvement, but not complete success.

I managed in one column to spell poles as polls. It is an election year and the subject was political, so perhaps I may be forgiven a mental lapse. Worse yet was my spelling of ostentatious in which I substituted a c for the second t, and verbiage, which came out verbage. Pure garbidge. I can't even begin to explain those two. I blame the Greeks for my misspelling of epitome. If it is to be epitome, catastrophe, and apostrophe, why not philosophe and geometre?

I'm convinced that some spelling errors are the result of overconfidence. The writer at work is supremely confident: British poet Alfred Austin, when chided for his grammatical errors, said "I dare not alter these things; they come to me from above." The fingers punch the keys with confidence and, although the trusted friend, the dictionary, is within easy reach, no hand stretches out to grasp it. It remains undisturbed on the desk while the writer writes on, never in doubt, but frequently in error. Because of this same false confidence, the word escapes validation during the edit. Others assume the writer incapable of error and they too omit confirmation of a suspected mistake. So a word such as forbears shows up in the column as farberers only to be caught, to the writer's chagrin, by a more observant, and better schooled, reader.

I must say, however, that I have enjoyed criticism. Not only has it been accompanied with compliments for the intent of this column, however fallible the columnist, but the response has confirmed the fervent hope of this writer that people do care about the language and have a genuine desire to improve their ability to use it correctly and to advantage.

Student of the Month

THE CARMEL High School business department recently honored freshman Christopher DiMaggio as Student of the Month for his scholastic work. DiMaggio, a 1986 winner of the Diocese of Monterey spelling bee and district winner of the Daughters of the American Revolution essay contest, says his favorite school subject is biology, though his primary extra-curricular activity is political science. He is an eight-year piano student of Vanessa Kelly of Pacific Grove, and is a three-time winner of the Music Teachers' Association of California (county branch) Scholarship Auditions. He is the son of Vince and Pat DiMaggio of Monterey.

'Tis the season to party

"THE YEAR is 1909, the hour 8:25 on the evening of Dec. 6th. Dinner guests are in the home of Richard and Lady Marjorie Bellamy, 165 Eaton Place, London. The Bellamy's modest staff consists of the butler, cook, maid to Lady B, head house parlourmaid, chauffeur, footman and scullery maid.

"Everything is just right because the guest of honor is none other than His Majesty King Edward VII, King of England by The Grace of God, Defender of The Faith, Emperor of India and the Dominions Beyond The Seas. The Sovereign is old and portly, fond of horses and appreciates the company of beautiful, amusing women.

"Ladies and gentlemen, please enjoy the food and wine of this Edwardian evening. Be gracious in the presence of the King, and, above all, please, let's not let him be bored," so spoke Suzanne Dewar at the present-day truly International Wine and Food Society's "Edwardian Christmas Dinner" in the beautiful Covey at Quail Lodge.

It took a full year of planning by dinner chairpersons Roderick and Suzanne Dewar. Including checking authenticity of foods and wines with the W&FS Headquarters, Old Brompton Road, London. Executive director Hugo Dunn-Meynell was not only cooperative but intrigued with the theme. So intrigued that he and his wife, Alice Wooledge Salmon attended their first American chapter society dinner right here in Carmel Valley.

Mr. Dunn-Meynell told me, "The King and I have much in common. We both like wine and women. We both married foreigners — the King, a Danish Princess and I, an American. I couldn't afford to eat at the Connaught Hotel so I married the (first woman) chef."

King Edward VII was the unseen guest of honor at a superb dinner (fit for a king) prepared by executive chef Bob Williamson, who grew up in England, and said, "The menu sounded familiar, although some things are not practical to do today."

Commentary for the carefully selected wines was given by society sommelier Dr. William Snell, who reminded guests that Queen Victoria (the king's mother), owned a small vineyard in the area from whence one of the wines came. Dr. Snell said that the port was exactly like that served to the King at the Bellamys. The wines complemented the carefully adapted menu by food consultant Mrs. Thomas H. Ainsworth, Jr. and her husband, who were chairpersons for the food committee.

Virginia Stanton (founding member of the local chapter), Lucille Huntington and Suzanne wore Edwardian gowns. As for the rest, it was black tie and formal holiday attire as they enjoyed the dinner inspired by Upstairs-Downstairs, with holiday centerpieces by guest T. Scott Moore.

Each course of the six-course repast was tres elegant. Part of the first course was American Columbian River Caviar and the Sauce Medoc on Saumon Braise (out of this world!), was sweetened by juice of Medoc grapes squeezed especially for this dinner. The service was impeccable and the setting worthy of a king.

All dined elegantly in the tiered setting of The Covey. The unusual theme and the holiday season brought out a record attendance of 72 members and guests. The Carmel Caroling Company and harpist Amy Krupski furnished entertainment.

Mr. Dunn-Meynell presented a 1987 House and Garden Cookbook (cooking in England), by his wife, along with a package of the Queen's Vintage Christmas Pudding to hostess, Mrs. Dewar. Ed Haber, Tony Deak, Tom Emery and the Covey staff gave her a bouquet of roses. Chef Williamson received coffee, tea and chocolate from a Regent Street firm that is a purveyor to the Royal Family.

This was a classic way to end the year for the local chapter of the International Wine and Food Society.

Some 34 ladies were able to appreciate by touch (and some by wearing), stunning one-of-a-kind jewelry pieces in the elegant setting of Stonepine Resort. And, what could be more fun than gazing into the facets of a sparkling canary yellow diamond ring? Or, wearing a bib necklace of green emeralds? Or, sporting a $40,000 collection of shining gold on the ears, neck, wrist and fingers? Or, experiencing the welcome weight of 12mm pearls caressing the neck? To do so for a few minutes is better than not having done so at all.

The jewelry party was arranged by Charlene Etienne, who invited representatives of Neiman-Marcus, Joseph White and Shirley Howard of SF and Scott McWhirter of Palo Alto. They made the event informative as well as fun.

The ladies heard some things most already knew: "You should have a jewelry wardrobe." Maybe, the word wardrobe was new, but is there a lady alive who doesn't love wearing jewelry?

In fact, they said building three wardrobes would be ideal. One of gold, one of pearls and one of stones — emerald, ruby, diamond, take your pick. Each wardrobe should be fashionable, elegant, understated — with lasting, eternal qualities and should be seen often. Thus, it is to be worn. Jewelry is not seasonal and should be bought for the pleasure one gets from wearing it — not as an investment.

To build a wardrobe start with earrings first as they are the first to be seen due to the location near the eyes. Next, select bracelets, followed by rings and necklaces. In the pearl wardrobe "larger is more" and a 34-inch strand of pearls (as large as affordable), could be doubled to form a choker (for versatility).

A question-and-answer period ended the demo session but jewelry was not forgotten as guests were guided to the dining room. An exceptional lunch prepared by Chef Robert Morris was served on holiday-decorated tables and conversation about jewelry continued.

The luncheon was highlighted by the presentation of a $5,000 check by Neiman-Marcus to Mrs. Etienne for Santa Catalina School.

Holiday greetings from around the world were delivered personally to the delight of Friends of the Monterey Institute of International Studies at the annual Christmas Party.

Around two dozen international students took time out from studying for finals to give personal greetings in their native tongues to the Friends. Thank-yous and seasonal greetings were in languages not understood by most. However, it is much like hearing music made from notes one cannot read. The message comes through anyway.

The purpose of Friends of MIIS is to raise money for scholarships, thus the face-to-face connection had a special meaning. It was gracious of the students to sacrifice time to meet and thank the supportive branch of MIIS. T. Scott Moore (Friends' president), introduced Dr. Robert G. Guard, Jr. (president of MIIS), who thanked the organization for its generous support of student scholarships in the institute that has students from 40 countries of the world. Dr. Guard introduced Michael Gleyze, spokesperson for the group. The presence of the international students proved to be the highlight of the evening.

The setting was the Monterey home of Mrs. Alice Cerrito, and she and her daughter, Mary Alice, greeted more than 100 Friends and guests. Holiday decorations were by Irene MacKenzie, Marilyn Gustafson and Dee Robertson. Georgia Von Richter graciously gave credit for the attractive and delicious food on the buffet table to her loyal board members. Dr. Ronald Chaplan handled bartender duties.

Guests left with "Joyeux Noel — Meilleurs Voeux," "Schoeni Wiennacht und Es Guests Neu," "Leshona Tovah" and "S Rozhdest Von Kristovim S Novin Godon" ringing like music in their ears.

Driving toward The Inn At Spanish Bay for the "1988 Christmas Salon" of The Bach Festival Associates, two klieg lights beckoned the way. Inside wassail welcomed guests but desserts were saved to end the evening on a sweet note.

The associates' goal is to maintain the spirit of the Bach Festival throughout the year and at Christmastime the spirit of good music is easily maintained. Especially, with artists such as mezzo-soprano Judy Druff and soprano Karen Hall (filling in for Laurance Woodford), accompanied by festival organist Ken Ahrens.

Lisa Farina planned the salon to the delight of associates' president Isabel Crossen and all who attended. The St. Andrews Ballroom was the perfect setting with a Christmas tree decorated the old-fashioned way with laurels of real popcorn and cranberries. Serving tables were decorated with Santa Claus and his reindeer (one stopping to graze), created by the Inn's chef.

Over at the Pine Inn hot wassail punch, champagne or wine was offered to current parents and alumni parents at a reception given by the Robert Louis Stevenson School Sponsors Club.

More than 80 people enjoyed the delicious luncheon prepared by chef Heinz Fanderl: Portofino Seafood Pasta, Veal Loin en Croute, Artichoke Mousse, Veggies and Pine

CHARLENE ETIENNE with $40,000 worth of gold jewelry from Nieman-Marcus shown at Stonepine Resort.

INTERNATIONAL FRIENDS of MIIS came to the Christmas party given by Friends of MIIS full of holiday greetings in several languages.

Even those who work so hard to make all the parties a success like to party themselves. "Destination Brazil" was this year's theme for the MP Hotel and Restaurant Association (MPHRA) Dinner at the Monterey Sheraton Ballroom. Rio at carnival time was the thought that came to mind as guests entered the ballroom escorted by the exotic DeFranco Dancers.

These hospitality specialists certainly know how to give a party. They pick a theme and play it up. It was Brazilian all the way — the menu, dance music by Viva Brazil, and even the three top prizes included Rio — two nights at Rio Vista's Rio Sands, dinners at Rio Grill, Cafe Rio, and Ventana Inn.

Chris McKay (in Rio shirt), and David Jones (in a '30s tie that fit the theme), kept the rhumba beat in mind during their duties as MCs.

Past MPHRA prexys attending included Csaba Ajan* ('76), Don Boston* ('77), Mary Alice Cerrito ('79), Don Elisha ('81), Nick Lombardo* ('82), Phil Lombardi* ('84) and William Everyone loves going to parties during the Christmas season and no group more than the Auxiliary of the SPCA. Mrs. Alfred Gawthrop opened her Pebble home for a cocktail buffet "Christmas Celebration" for animal lovers and protectors.

A two-piece combo filled in the background as SPCA friends visited with each other and indulged in the good food made by board members, including Georgia Hollister's wonderful shortbread (in dog shapes, naturally).

Two young attorneys have their shingles swinging out in front of their new offices on Forest Avenue. Gail Gallant and Barbara Berlitz gave a party to welcome their many friends to their charming Pacific Grove cottage professional home.

Hors d'oeuvres and goodies were stationed around the offices under works of art on the walls. Gael's father, John Gallant, dispensed beverages in the kitchen.

Each guest brought a toy or stuffed animal to be donated to the Battered Women's Shelter, so the party started off with the true spirit of giving. Mazel tov!

SOME COMFORTING THOUGHTS ABOUT WINTER ENERGY BILLS.

Winter's colder temperatures and longer nights increase the need for light and heat. Combined with higher rates, this may soon mean a larger energy bill. If so, here are some important sources of help.

1. Do-It-Yourself Energy Audit.

Your PG&E office will send you a form, which you can use to check your own use of energy. Fill it out, send it to PG&E. We'll check it by computer, free, and show you exactly where you can save money.

2. Balanced Payment Plan.

Take the surprise out of monthly energy bills by dividing your estimated annual PG&E bill into 12 balanced payments. You'll know in advance how much you'll pay.

3. Automatic Payment Service.

Authorize your financial institution to pay your PG&E bill automatically. You'll save time and postage.

4. Direct Weatherization (HELP).

If you live on a reduced income, and meet certain qualifications, PG&E will weatherize your home free. Your local PG&E office can give you the name and number of the agency administering this program.

5. Project REACH.

Sponsored by PG&E shareholders and voluntary customer contributions, project REACH provides financial assistance to elderly, handicapped or low-income customers who have no other way to pay their bills. For information, call your local PG&E office, or the Salvation Army.

6. Medical Baseline.

For customers who are medically disabled, additional quantities of energy may be available at lower baseline rates. To obtain the proper forms and information, call your local PG&E office.

7. Energy Crisis Intervention Program (ECIP).

If you're in a low-income household having an energy-related emergency, the State Department of Economic Opportunity offers special help through local community action agencies. For more information, call your local PG&E office.

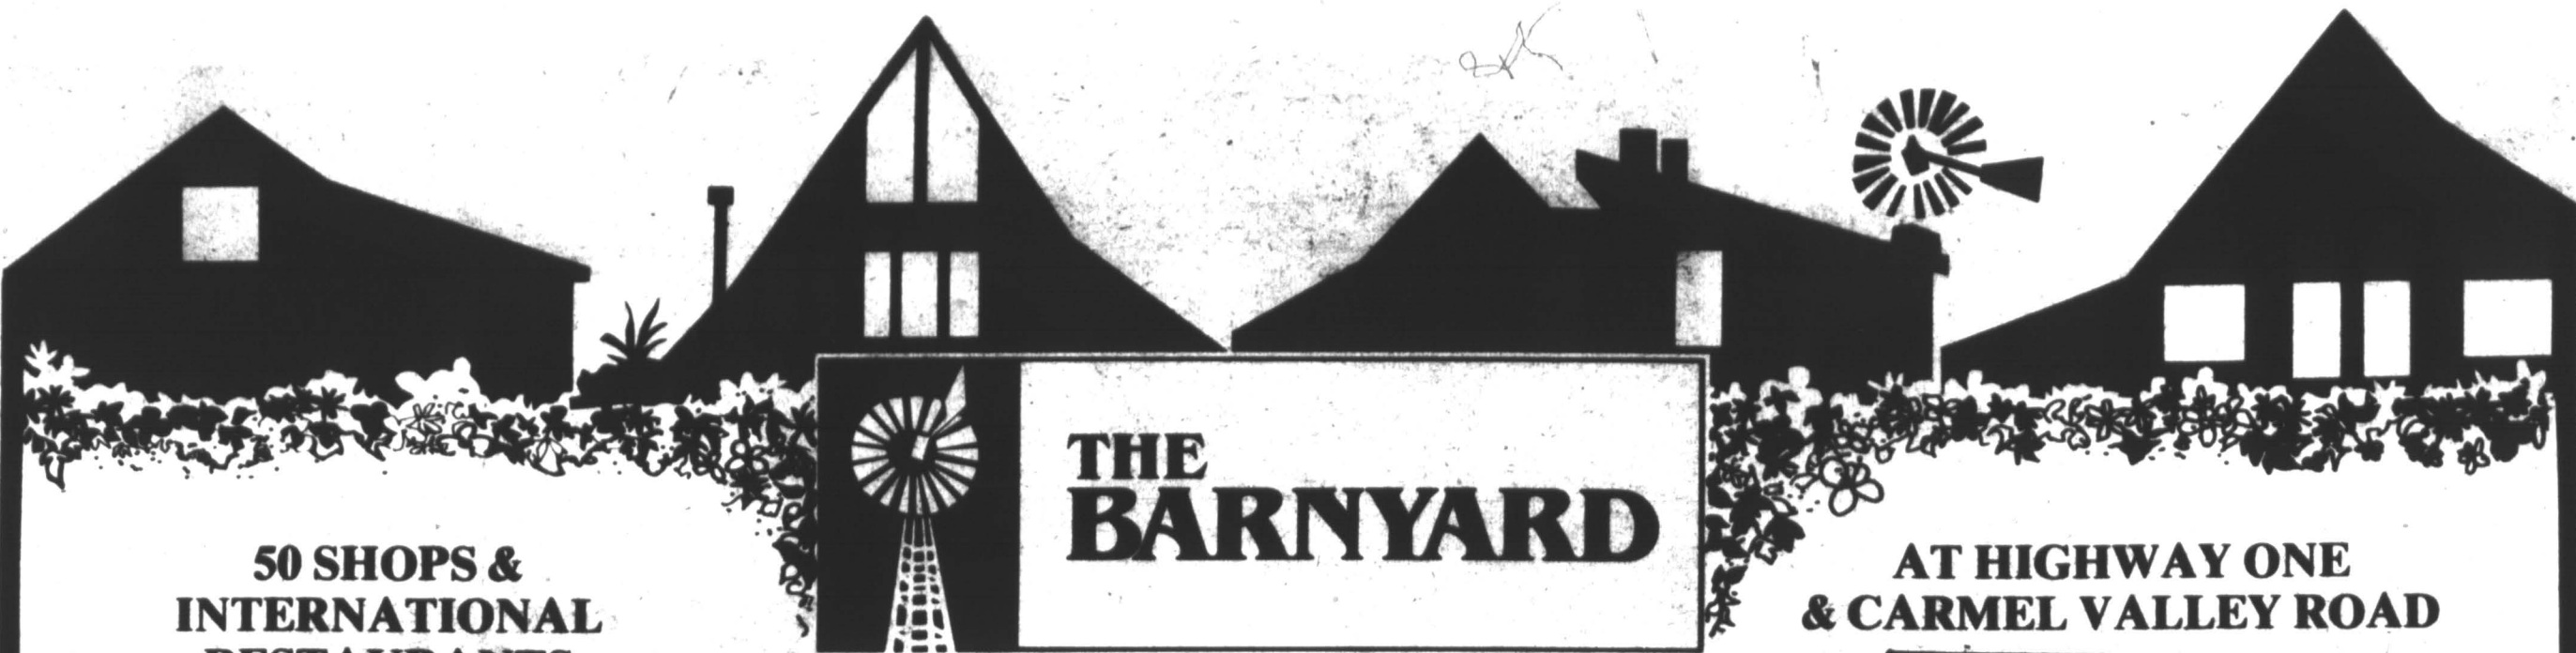

8. Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP).

This program provides energy assistance in the form of direct payments to families meeting program income requirements. For information, call toll-free 1-800-433-HEAP (1-800-433-4327).

If you would like to participate in any of the above programs, contact your local PG&E office.

ENTRE NOUS:

Gamma Phi Beta, the educational and philanthropic society, held its Christmas Supper in the Carmel home of Mrs. William Moritz with a splendidly decorated 20-foot Christmas tree as the focal point. Gifts for handicapped children (selected for specific needs of each child), were wrapped as part of the holiday spirit of the evening, reported Mrs. Roger S. Gammons...Christmas gifts for children of migrant workers, as well as for the Salvation Army, was the theme of the Dec. 12th dinner for members of the local chapter of Altrusa International which was held at The Pine Inn. "In keeping with the international goal of improving literacy, the club contributed over 50 books as individual gifts for children of Mexican families in school in Salinas Valley, said Dr. Iona Logie...First-grader Daniel Moreland of Seaside took home a $1,000 savings bond as the grand prize winner of the Monterey Sheraton's third Christmas Card Contest. Daniel's drawing of Santa and an angel set against a black starry sky will be the hotel's 1988 Christmas card. MONTEREY SHERATON OFFERS FREE ROOMS DURING HOLIDAYS

For those patients in area hospitals and nursing homes who won't be getting home for the holidays, the Monterey Sheraton has an offer to bring home a little closer to them.

In a program instituted by the Monterey Sheraton's General Manager Bill Hurley, people who are traveling more than 50 miles to visit their relatives in local hospitals or nursing homes may stay free at the Sheraton for up to three nights from Dec. 23 through Dec. 26.

"You want visitors any time of the year when you're in a nursing home or hospital, but during the holidays, well, that's when being alone can really be devastating," said Hurley. "This is a slow time for us, so it seemed only logical to offer our rooms as an inducement, you might say, for people to make that extra effort and see their relatives here."

The offer does not include meals or incidentals. Reservation may be made with the Monterey Sheraton Director of Public Relations Tia Gindick at 624-7309. People making reservations will be asked for the name and facility of the relative they are visiting.

COMMUNITY HOSPITAL SPONSORS BLOOD DRIVES

Holiday revelers reminded 'be a friend, then a host'

WITH THE holiday party season in full swing, the California State Automobile Association (AAA) reminds party-givers to "be first a friend, then a host."

Drinking drivers are responsible for approximately half the people killed in California traffic accidents, according to the CSAA. In California, 2,754 persons were killed in alcohol-related accidents in 1987 out of a total of 5,500 traffic deaths.

CSAA issues the following tips for party hosts:

—Suggest that your guests form car pools, with designated drivers who agree to remain sober.

—Don't make drinking the primary activity at your party. Focus attention on dancing, games or conversation.

—Make sure that fruit juice or non-alcoholic punch, soft drinks, coffee and tea are available.

—Use fruit juice or tea as a base for alcohol-content punch. Carbonated mixers speed up the rate that alcohol is absorbed into the body.

—Provide plenty of food because food helps slow the body's absorption of alcohol. Offer meat, cheese and other high-protein foods because they stay in the stomach longer.

—At least two hours before the party is scheduled to end, put away the alcoholic beverages. Continue to provide plenty of non-alcoholic drinks.

—Offer your guests a late snack to end the evening.

Quick cures won't help those who have overindulged, CSAA says. Taking a cold shower or drinking a lot of coffee after too much alcohol makes a person wide-awake, but still drunk, the auto club emphasizes.

If guests do drink too much, the host can call organizations that offer free transportation to party-goers; pay for a taxi ride home; drive the guests home or let them spend the night.

If drinkers insist on driving, the party-giver can call 911 to reach the local police department or, if highway travel is involved, the California Highway Patrol. It is helpful to have a description of the vehicle, including color and license plate number.

"We'll take this one"

Perfect match plus

By Jim Johnson

THE US Ski Team's "official car" is America's favorite station wagon. It's not Ford's Taurus wagon, Chevrolet's Celebrity wagon or Toyota's Corolla wagon...it's Subaru's GL and DL wagons.

In contrast to most four-wheel drives' rugged reputation, the 4WD Subaru wagons are comfortable and utilitarian. Front and rear seating is more than adequate for four 6-footers. The rcaro-type front buckets give excellent, needed lateral support. Analog gauges and instruments are legible and within quick reach. With 70 cubic feet of interior space the GL 10's usable cargo area approaches Volvo 740's capacity.

The GL 10's electronic suspension for "ride-on-air" comfort is just that...a ride on air. Four-wheel independent suspension gives crisp handling characteristics not expected from a wagon.

At 3000 rpms, the boost from the water-cooled turbo cuts in, developing 115 hp. Hang on! Coupled with four-wheel disc brakes and a close ratio, 5-speed transmission, your "sleeper" wagon will accelerate and stop like a sports car while getting the kids to school on time. Add to the standard 4WD package, automatic load leveling, locking-limited slip differential, this wagon will get mom, dad, kids and luggage to the ski lift lines on time.

Subaru is perceived as the first producer of 4WD passenger cars sold in America. Its "perfect match" perception needs to be broadened to include affordability, comfort, performance and value. Over one half of all 1987 US station wagon buyers were in accord...they bought Subarus!

to battered women and their children, and to lonely seniors is once again under way at nine local banks and savings and loan firms.

It is the Christmas Candy Cane Project, now in its sixth successful year. All Carmel-area residents are again urged to support the drive as generously as they have in the past.

Nine savings institutions are serving as collection points for gifts to be donated by the public. The project is being coordinated by the Carmel Board of Realtors.

Shortly before Christmas, the gifts will be gathered up by the Realtors. Some will be given to the Carmel Foundation for distribution to lonely seniors at Christmastime, and some to the YWCA, which maintains an Emergency Shelter for Battered Women and Their Children.

The victims of domestic violence must often flee their homes on a moment's notice, unable to take anything with them—not even the barest necessities. Both lonely seniors and battered women and children would face a bleak and unhappy holiday without the cheerful gifts provided by the Candy Cane Project.

The Candy Cane Project works like this: Beside the Christmas trees set up by each participating bank and savings and loan firm is a gaily decorated basket containing peppermint candy canes.

Customers are asked to choose one of the canes. On each cane is a tag suggesting a modest gift to be purchased, wrapped, and left at the bank or S&L for pickup by Wednesday, Dec. 21.

Gifts for seniors may include such items as household items, coffee mugs, stamps, and stationery. Gifts for battered women may include toilet articles and cosmetics, and of course toys for their children.

Last year's drive resulted in several hundred presents being collected and distributed in time to bring Christmas cheer to the women and children, and to the seniors.

The nine firms taking part in this year's drive are:

Security Pacific, Carmel; Pacific Western Bank, Carmel; Great Western Bank, Carmel and Carmel Rancho; Monterey

Savings, Pebble Beach, Carmel, and Carmel Valley; First Interstate Bank, Carmel, and Carmel Rancho.

The Candy Cane Project is one of three Christmas campaigns being undertaken by the Carmel Board of Realtors. The Board is holding a blood drive day at Community Hospital on Dec. 16. It is also cooperating with the Monterey Peninsula Board of Realtors in the Christmas CanTree, a massive drive to collect 100,000 cans of food for the Salvation Army and its program to feed the hungry.

SANTA CLAUS TO DELIVER PRESENTS BY FIRE TRUCK IN MID CARMEL VALLEY FIRE DISTRICT

Santa Claus will be making deliveries to families living within the Mid Carmel Valley Fire District (Rancho San Carlos Road west to western boundaries of Garland Park). Santa will deliver presents to children by fire truck on Christmas Eve, between 3 and 6:30 p.m.

If you wish to have a present delivered, drop off the wrapped gift at the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Station, 8455 Carmel Valley Road, any day between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m., on or before Friday, Dec. 23.

Gifts should be wrapped and identified with child's name, address and phone number. One package per child will be accepted.

COMMUNITY FOUNDATION ANNOUNCES GRANTS

The Community Foundation for Monterey County has announced a final round of grants from the general endowment and other funds, bringing the total 1988 grants to more than $400,000.

The latest grants from the unrestricted endowment included $7,500 to Meals on Wheels in Salinas for weekend and holiday meal deliveries and office space expansion; $4,000 to the Family Resource Center for parenting classes; $7,100 to the Josephine Kernes Memorial Pool for renovation of a pool for the handicapped; $5,000 to the YMCA of the Monterey Peninsula for the Men's Alternative to Violence Program; and $5,000 to the San Antonio Community Betterment Association in Lockwood for restoration of San Antonio School as a community center.

The foundation also awarded $3,000 in special grants for emergency relief during the Christmas season to Friends Outside (Soledad prison program), the Salinas Jaycees (children's clothing program), and the Salvation Army in Monterey and Salinas.

Grants from field of interest funds were made at the discretion of the board to the following agencies: $2,700 from the Fund for the Blind or Illiterate to the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District for a research project on reading disorders; $400 from the Paul Block, Jr. Fund to the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association; $400 to the Josephine Kernes Memorial Pool for swim therapy for handicapped youngsters; and $6,000 to the Monterey History and Art Association from the Thomas Doud, Sr. and Anita M. Doud Fund No. 1 for exhibit research for the new Maritime Museum.

In a related action, the foundation board committed to pay a grant of $250,000 from the Thomas Doud, Sr. and Anita M. Doud Fund No. 2 to the Monterey History and Art Association toward construction of the new Maritime Museum.

Can collector

MYRLE MACLAUGHLIN of Merit-McBride Realtors in Carmel paused while collecting canned food donations from residents for the annual Christmas CanTree project sponsored by the Carmel and Monterey Peninsula Board of Realtors. Goal this year is 100,000 cans, with a "Christmas CanTree Week" scheduled for Dec. 11-17. The effort will climax in the building of a huge "can tree" at Del Monte Center Dec. 17.

Celebrating Lucia

MEMBERS AND friends of a Swedish class were guests of Mrs. June Turner at her Rancho Rio Vista home in Carmel for the traditional Swedish celebration of Lucia. Nina Hare (above), who was Lucia, was joined by her three daughters Jacqueline, Sabrina and Jessica (below), who all wore long white dresses with red sashes, with Lucia wearing the crown of lighted candles and the little girls carrying candles wearing tinsel crowns. They offered Lucia buns and gingerbread cookies to the guests. Lucia is celebrated Dec. 13 every year in Sweden, where the Lucia appears to open the Yuletide. Special guests at the event were Gunilla Sandberg and Anna Johansson of Sweden. The class has met for 12 years, with Gunilla Tjernlund Marks leading the class.

At age 66, she continues to work on her game while helping guests improve theirs. One thing she's given up: piloting her own plane. Lost in a storm over Virginia, she vowed that if she got down safely she'd give up flying.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Our days on earth need not go unappreciated

Carmel Pine Cone Dec. 11, 1980

An old Irishman, Shamus, was courting Bridget for 50 years.
 Finally she said, "Shamus don't you think it's time we got married?"
 He replied, "Bridget, who would have us?"
 From time to time we all have the feeling of being ignored, that our work is not appreciated; that our love goes unrequited; our drudgery unnoticed, our sacrifices underestimated. On the other hand, nature tells us that the fig tree does not thank the earth for providing it with sustenance nor does the tree thank the sky for sunlight and rain. That's their job, just as it is our job to serve God, obey His laws and serve our neighbor above self. Just as the cow is made to graze, the plant to blossom, the cloud to produce rain, so are we meant to serve God and our fellow man.
 That is the message that Rotary has been stressing in its motto for years. Service above self.
 We might ask, "So what else is new?"
 Amen.

Beth Israel bell-ringing

Members of Congregation Beth Israel are signing up for their annual bell-ringing on Christmas Day, again staffing the important social service work of the Salvation Army, while freeing their Christian neighbors to prepare for their holiday.

 Congregation Beth Israel has been honored by the Salvation Army for their ongoing support of the Army's Christmas kettle collection. Synagogue members sign up to form two-person bell-ringing teams and volunteer their time anywhere from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. on Christmas Day.

CRITIC AT LARGE

By Mac McDonald

The Monster Mash

JERRY FORD (no, not that Ford), has in many ways created a monster.

Ford is responsible for that multi-media entertainment amalgam called the "Pelican Bent-A-Fit Ball," which this year will be celebrating its sixth annual event, set for 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 15 at The Club of Monterey.

Ford's little fund-raiser has grown immensely in the past six years, so much so that it may threaten to engulf him and take over his life (he seems to be working on the event year-round).

What started out as a simple fund-raiser to raise money to help mutilated pelicans six years ago has turned into a full-grown extravaganza.

Ford's "Frankenstein monster" features a dizzying array of eclectic entertainment, this year including exotic dancers Sahara and Atia, magician Roy Slater, comedian Mickey Joseph (winner of the recent KWAV Comedy Laff-Off), acoustic jazz group Boppa Noya, rock band Astonished Man, modern rockers The Mice, all-woman rockers Wilma, Ford's own band, the very strange and unusual Bent, and last but not least, seminal heavy rockers Blue Cheer, whose last hit occurred in the '60s, a heavy metal remake of Eddie Cochran's Summertime Blues.

One of the best aspects of this whole evening is that the cover is only $5 in advance and $6 at the door and that those proceeds will go to the Monterey County SPCA Wildlife Center, which long ago was responsible for the caring of those unfortunate pelicans.

By the way, one of the most popular events of the evening will be the crowning of the Pelican Queen, which can either be male or female, but two males must compete together as one, because, as Jerry puts it, "it takes two dudes to equal one chick."

One can only wonder what will spring from Jerry's fertile imagination next year.

HOT TICKETS:

• The Club's weekly Comedy Night this weekend will feature comedian Mark Price. That name may not ring a bell, but try on "Skippy," the nerdy neighbor who has the hots for Mallory on TV's Family Ties. Yes, Skippy is a stand-up as well as an actor (his films include Trick or Treat and the recent The Rescue). Opening for Price will be the aforementioned Mr. Joseph, along with emcee Chicago Steve Barkley. Curtain's at 9 p.m., which is unusual because The Club doesn't even have curtains.

Children's community chorus formed

A community chorus for children is being formed under the direction of Jacqueline Rosett Dickman. Admission is free to the program, which is sponsored by the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula.

The performing group will offer fun and fellowship and opportunities to learn musicianship and dramatic skills.

Weekly rehearsals will take place Wednesdays at the church, located on Carmel Valley Road one mile east of Highway 1. Ages through fifth-grade meet 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. and sixth-graders through high school age will meet 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Ansel Adams also had a way with pen and paper

By ANNE PAPINEAU

ANSEL ADAMS — the artist who understood the play of light on film — also had a way with pen and paper. Letters to and from this photographic legend form the soul of a new book published by the New York Graphic Society, Ansel Adams: Letters and Images.

There is a sense of immediacy to letters, which can crystallize thoughts and eras with the clarity of a photographer's contact sheet. Undimmed by reinterpretation is this cross-section of Adams' writings to friends and associates. And there are letters written to him as well, some by the famous or soon-to-be-famous. The hefty book is liberally illustrated with photographs by Adams, many of them never published before.

Letters and Images opens with a 1916 note to Ansel's Aunt Mary, penned on stationery imprinted "Camp Curry — Yosemite Valley."

"Flims (sic) are expensive to develop and I expect to be broke if I keep up the rate I am taking pictures," the 14-year-old writes. The volume concludes with a February 1984 letter Adams sent to the New York Times that pleads for world leaders to end the nuclear arms race. He died that April at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

Mary Street Alinder, who was Adams' assistant from 1979 until his death, co-edited Letters and Images. She also edited Adams' best-selling Autobiography.

"Ansel and (wife) Virginia and his parents never threw away a letter," notes Alinder. "He was a terrific letter writer. That's gone out of style. Now we use the telephone or the fax machine."

Mary Street Alinder and her husband Jim met Ansel Adams the way thousands did — at a photographic workshop. That 1967 encounter grew into a productive friendship and working relationship. As she recalls, Adams was "already a major legend" when the couple began to correspond with him. Jim Alinder went on to serve as executive director of The Friends of Photography, the organization Adams co-founded to help nurture fine art photography. The Friends bloomed under Alinder's leadership.

"Ansel and I got along famously," notes Mary Alinder. "I already knew a lot about photography when I was hired to make him write his Autobiography."

Ansel Adams had already published 38 books before his autobiography, many of them classic texts on photography and the Zone System techniques that he invented.

"He was terrific at meeting deadlines but he was less comfortable writing about his own life," his former assistant explains. "He had an almost Victorian sensibility that a man's life is private."

Adams had also undergone open heart surgery in 1979. So Mary Alinder orchestrated a schedule to help him meet his publisher's demands while observing a healthy regimen. Headquarters were the Adams home in Carmel Highlands.

"Our first days together we'd take walks along the beach and I would carry a tape recorder to record his answers to questions. I made him buy two computers, and he said, 'I'll never learn this.' So I said 'pshaw' and egged him on. He would write whatever he felt."

HIS AUTOBIOGRAPHY and the newly published book of letters were the last two projects that Adams personally envisioned. To fulfill his wishes, Mary Alinder and co-editor Andrea Gray Stillman — another former assistant — pored over hundreds of letters from the family archives. They also turned to his friends, to libraries and academic sources around the nation to assemble significant correspondence.

Following a 1983 visit with Ronald Reagan, Adams wrote to Edwin Land, the founder of Polaroid. In his letter Adams described the president as "disarmingly cordial but seems to be a viscous sponge from the neck up."

When Alinder submitted the manuscript for Letters to the publisher, it ran 1,400 pages. The completed work has been edited down to 425 pages, including illustrations.

"It's not an academic book, but an informal book," Alinder observes. "His life mirrors the growth and recognition of photography as an art form. And you can see Ansel's raunchy sense of humor. There were different friends to whom he would write with great humor. But his letters to (renowned photographer) Alfred Stieglitz were very philosophical. There were wonderful letters between them — very rich."

The book also contains letters written by Adams to his wife, Virginia Best Adams, whom he met in 1921 in their beloved Yosemite.

"They married Jan. 2, 1928, and he developed his aesthetics and philosophy of life and art during that time. This is beautifully expressed in his letters to Virginia," Alinder relates. "Virginia is 84 and doing terrifically. She was a great help with this book. She read through every draft, commenting and editing as she went along. Her memory is terrific, and she reacted to our selection of photos."

Another Carmel Highlands resident who figures in Letters is master photographer Edward Weston.

"Their friendship began in about 1931, when Ansel reviewed a Weston exhibit in San Francisco," explains Alinder. "It was a positive review, except that Ansel did not react very strongly to Edward Weston's images of vegetables and plants. The men were opposites but close, dear friends and supporters."

"Edward Weston lived an almost monastic life here in Carmel, concentrating on his art and its simplification. A lot of what he did was 'seat of the pants.' On the other hand — Ansel Adams had 10 fingers in 10 pies. In 1934 he became a Sierra Club board member. He wrote his first technical book in 1935. He hung out a shingle in 1930 to produce portraits, photos for corporate brochures, magazine work, advertising. He worked very hard to make his way, and he studied very intensively the science of photography."

Although nearing 80 when Alinder began to work for him, Adams continued his full schedule.

"He didn't believe in vacations. He'd work seven days a week. I often worked six days a week at his home and the seventh at my home," she says.

Alinder describes the Adams' legacy as one of sharing.

"He was a great teacher, never a selfish person. He taught with great generosity. His grandparents were pioneers. His father passed on to him the American pioneer tradition — that whether it was a horse or knowledge, you shared it with others. He taught workshops for the Friends of Photography until the time of his death."

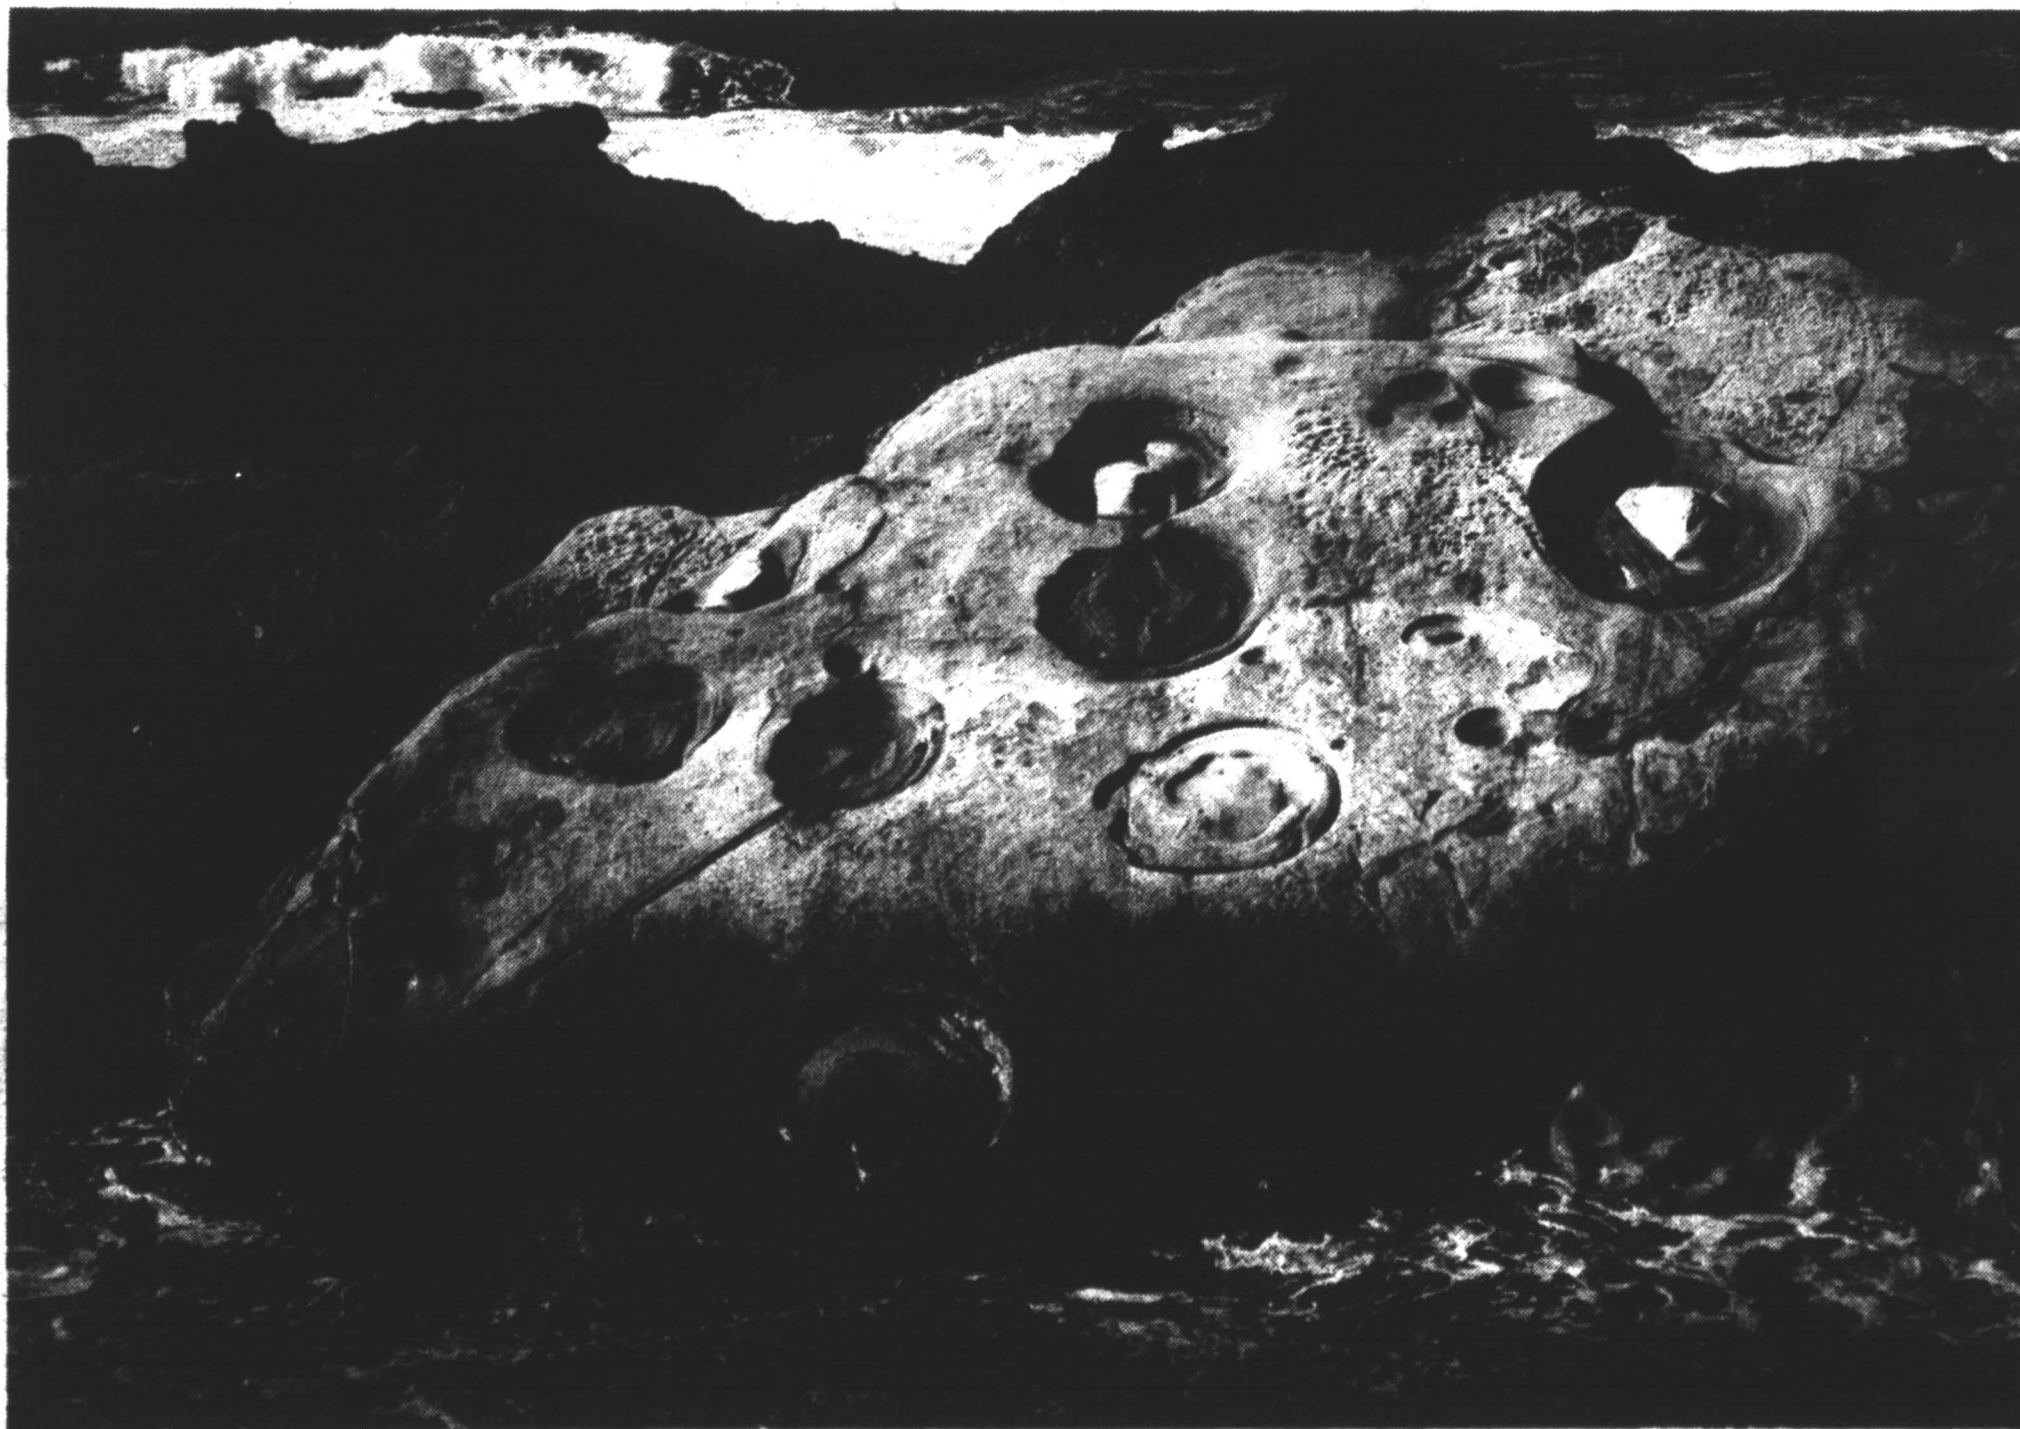

Before photography consumed his artistic energies Ansel Adams studied piano with the dream of being a concert artist. He retained an interest in the instrument even after arthritis impaired his hands.

"Virginia would tell you that in his younger years he was the life of the party. He'd play Strauss waltzes with his bottom — or play the piano with oranges," Alinder quips.

Letters and Images includes correspondence with pianist Vladimir Ashkenazy, whom Adams first met when Ashkenazy arrived as a surprise 80th birthday present and performed a concert in Adams' home. As revealed in Letters, Adams' friendship with the pianist was — like with so many others — warm and rewarding.

"He was in terrific spirits and health until the day he died," remembers Alinder, who was with Adams at the end. "When he died he was listening to Brahms' Second Piano concerto on his Walkman, Ashkenazy's latest recording, and reading a murder mystery."

"Until his death, he was totally his own man — bright, intellectual, reading four books at one time."

"ROCKS AND Surf, the Slot, Point Lobos State Reserve, California, 1984" by Ansel Adams is one of the photographs featured in a new book featuring the writings of the renowned photographer, Ansel Adams Letters and Images 1916-1984. (Copyright ©

BAY LIGHTS

By Ray Mungo

A different flavor

IT'S BEEN five years since Fuad Bahou opened Chutneys Gourmet Cafe in the Crossroads and this little restaurant was successful from day one. Chutneys' clientele includes a high percentage of locals on return visits, which tells you the quality of the food is consistently good and the price moderate.

Tucked away in the mall, this warm spot is inviting, colorful and informal, and the first thing that grabs your attention on the daily specials board is that every dish seems original, unique. Fuad is some kind of genius in the kitchen, a man who not only likes to cook and eat but thinks of food as a philosophy of life.

"The subject of food, like that of love, should cause the heart to leap and the pulse to flutter with nothing but the gentlest emotions," Fuad writes on the menu and ah...we felt more relaxed already. A glass of house white wine and small bowl of startling bean soup, smooth and piquant, helped set the mood.

The ambitious menu is famous for burgers at lunch, fabulous entrees of seafood, beef, pasta, poultry and vegetarian specialties at dinner and, of course, chutney with everything. Bay Lights roundly applauds this sensible bit of good cheer. Fuad makes his own and you can take Chutneys' chutney home in a jar.

Dining companion Bradley Zeve decided to be brave and tried the Cajun-style blackened snapper burger, a fresh snapper filet smothered in gorgeous homemade creole relish. He enthused over this fish with boundless praise while Bay Lights took the more conventional, but equally delicious, path of the classic spicy Chutneys burger, which can be ordered with either beef patty or chicken breast. Ours was beefy n' spicy enough to please, and complemented by a nifty salad. Like all good cooks, Fuad uses matching colors in his presentation. The food is pretty, the ambience festive.

We tried to resist dessert in the interest of not ballooning up any further than we already have since Thanksgiving, but Fuad talked us into an apricot mousse he described as lighter than air, nothing really, just a whimsy. It was scrumptious. Ditto for our dining companion's hazelnut cheesecake, and somehow the afternoon ahead seemed more bearable, less stressed.

FUAD WAS born in Jerusalem, was a professor of art in Knoxville, Tenn. and Durham, S.C., got into the restaurant biz with Chutneys, did a cooking show on a local radio station for a year or so, and just authored a book of recipes and philosophies called A Different Flavor ($12.95 paperback). Last year he had a second restaurant called Scampi's right next door but the two are now one as Chutneys. "We came to our senses," he laughed. "One restaurant is enough"...

KEEP THOSE cards and letters pouring in, folks, telling us what your favorite local restaurant is and why. We're enjoying the heck out of your comments and giving away neat prizes provided by local merchants in the spirit of the season. Today's winner is Patricia O'Neill of Carmel who writes:

"You seem to have discovered all my favorites but just in case I missed a column or two, may I suggest you try the new Country Kitchen in Carmel Valley for a delightful breakfast menu and ample seating in a sylvan setting, which will no doubt give the Wagon Wheel crowd a respite from the long wait for good food."

Well, awwwright and Patricia wins a free Hollywood haircut and style by Dan Ferris at High on the Hog in Carmel, where by the way they're having a party from 6-8 p.m. Friday (Dec. 16), everyone invited and see ya there.

More prizes including the Dream Date in Monterey and Reviewer's Lunch for two in a Very Nice Restaurant (you be the reviewer) will be announced in forthcoming columns this month and send that card to Bay Lights, Box G-1, Carmel 93921...

MIDNIGHT SNACKS: Speaking of free stuff, it's hard to top this one. The Monterey Sheraton Hotel is giving away free rooms over Christmas (Dec. 23-26) to anyone visiting a patient in a local hospital or nursing home. The only condition is that the visitor come from at least 50 miles away. Up to three nights are free, and call Tia Gindick (649-4234) to make arrangements...

Mother taught us it's not polite to take obvious delight in other people's sufferings, but since no local paper picked up the story Bay Lights is obliged to tell you that L.A. Dodger manager Tommy Lasorda's Ribs and Pasta restaurant was closed down by health officials for what one inspector called "the worst case of rat infestation I've ever seen." You don't even want to know how gross the conditions were in the kitchen. On Fan Appreciation Day at Dodger Stadium, one of the prizes was dinner at Lasorda's...

The indefatigable Dr. Don H. Parker says we haven't lived until we've experienced the occasional Tea Dance sponsored by the Lions with proceeds benefiting the Blind and Visually Impaired Service Center of Monterey County. "This is a touch of class for our peninsula," he writes. Music is by the Moonlighter's Band, free dance lessons are available, admission's $7 and you can get on their mailing list by calling 649-8253...

MORE GOOD news, USAir is providing free flight tickets to artists and eligible people attending arts conferences or events. Locals Linda Bellon-Fisher and Caroline Berry were recipients and more info is at (916)447-7811...

Tony Bennett shows another side to his artistry in new exhibit

AN EXCLUSIVE exhibition of the art of entertainer/artist Tony Bennett will be presented at the Zantman Art Galleries, Sixth and Mission in Carmel on Friday, Dec. 16.

ENTERTAINER/ARTIST Tony Bennett will be on hand to discuss his artwork at a reception at Zantman Gallery Friday, Dec. 16.

Bennett will be available to discuss his original artwork and to sign his lithographs and prints during a reception set 5:30 to 7 p.m. at the Zantman Art Galleries. The public is invited to attend.

Tony Bennett has vacillated between art and music since his youth. The son of an Astoria, Long Island, grocer, he worked as a singing waiter at a local restaurant while still in his teens. At the same time he was attending New York's High School of Industrial Art, now the School of Art and Design, with the idea of becoming an artist.

At the urging of a teacher who felt he could make it big as a singer, he shifted to music. His success as a singer left little time for art, but through it all he kept nurturing the original impulse.

Bennett's approach is generally representational although at times he does some abstract work. He finds his subject matter in nature, depicting it variously in landscapes, portraits and still life. His favorite form, he says, is landscape. His style is best described as impressionistic using simplified though well-defined forms, with broad sweeps of color. He prefers to work in oils, the medium of the old masters, even though watercolors are more manageable when traveling. He tries to paint or draw every day, and even on the road manages to sketch or do ink washes during free moments. When time is short he may resort to a camera to make shorthand "sketches" of picturesque scenes, which he then works on in his New York studio.

The singer says his styles has not changed drastically over the years, but he does feel he has become more skilled as a painter. He has studied privately with a number of artists, including with Basil Baylin in New York.

For further information, contact Steven Huish or Bob Brooks at 624-8314.

"GREEK PORT," a limited edition lithograph by singer-artist Tony Bennett will be among the variety of original artwork in an exclusive exhibition of Bennett's works from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 16 at Zantman Art Galleries, Sixth and Mission in Carmel. Bennett will be on hand to discuss his works and sign lithographs and prints.

Eclectic exhibit offers view of Indian culture

AN ECLECTIC exhibition of photogravures by Edward S. Curtis will be shown at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History from Dec. 15 through Jan. 15. This exhibition portrays the culture of numerous California region tribes, including Wailaki, Wap-po, Maidu, Miwok, Chuckhansi and Yaudanchi.

The photogravures capture the classic purity and strength of a people whose very existence was being threatened by the advance of an alien culture. They reveal Curtis's commitment to produce a permanent memorial to the race and his recognition that the passing of every old man and woman meant the risk of losing forever the knowledge of sacred rites and traditions.

These images are from Curtis's 20 volume work, The North American Indian, which consists of approximately 2,500 images and is one of the largest photographic archives ever created by a single artist.

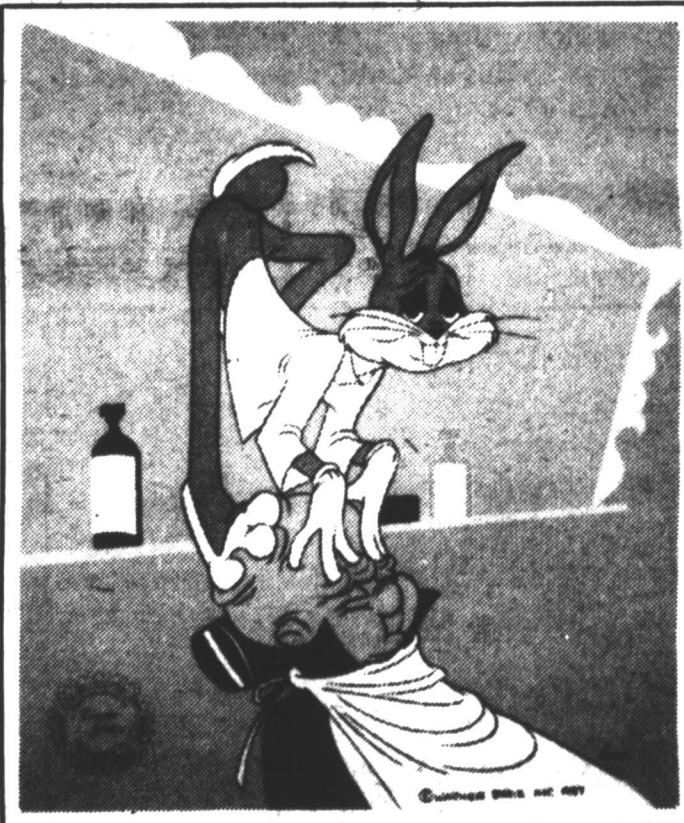

"Indians of the California Region" features many of Curtis's best graphic representations of the coastal tribes. "A Summer Camp: Lake Pomo" and "On the Shores of Clear Lake" convey the vastness and grandeur of the area; "Pomo Seed-Gathering Utensils" and "Rattlesnake Design," on the other hand focus on the practical, albeit more mundane, side of the culture.

Among the most captivating inclusions are the portraits of the people. Each is striking for its beauty and its seriousness. Curtis's photogravures make each subject come alive and make an implicit comment on the inherent integrity of Indian culture.

Blair-Murrah, the organization providing this exhibit, offers traveling loan exhibitions on a variety of historical and contemporary subjects to institutions throughout the world.

This exhibit will also include examples of California Indian baskets from the permanent ethnographic collection of the museum.

A holiday open house will begin at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 18 at the museum, located at 165 Forest Ave. in Pacific Grove.

Renowned violinist will play Sunset Center Dec. 17

ANNE SOPHIE MUTTER will perform works by Tartini, Beethoven, Frank and Ravel on her Stradivarius violin in a Saturday, Dec. 17 concert in Carmel. The Carmel Music Society sponsors her performance, which will begin at 8 p.m. in Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel. For tickets, call 625-9938.

HAILED BY Herbert von Karajan as one of the greatest violinists in the world, Anne-Sophie Mutter brings her reputation and Stradivarius to Sunset Theater at 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 17 for the Carmel Music Society.

(At press time very few seats remained and the event is expected to be sold out, according to Lequita Watkins of CMS.)

At age 24, Mutter has established her place in the center of the classical music stage world-wide. Born a journalist's daughter in the German town of Rheinfelden, she now is a citizen of the world jetting her talent planet wide on an increasingly demanding concert schedule.

So appreciated in Japan, Fraulein Mutter is paid homage with an escort of a 12 man, red-sashed honor guard throughout her tours. At London's Royal Festival Hall she performed at Brahms concerto which earned her the title of Queen of Sheba from the conservative Telegraph Sunday Magazine for her entrance to the hall wearing her trademark Dior gown. Constantly Mutter's reviews and press focus on the brilliance and power of her musical gifts and on her gifts of style and beauty.

The list of Mutter admirers in the music world includes Mstislav Rostrovich, Riccardo Muti and others. Winner of a sheet-long list of awards, Mutter has already cut 13 recordings on Deutsche Grammophon, EMI/Angel labels. The discs range from Bach through Mozart, Brahms and Vivaldi to Lalo, Sarasate and Massenet.

The Dec. 17 concert for the Music Society includes the Tartini Sonata in G minor (the so-called 'Devil's Trill'); Beethoven's Sonata No. 5 in F major, Op. 24; Frank's Sonata in A major and Ravel's Tzigane, rhapsodie de concert.

Tickets for the concert may be obtained by calling the Society at 625-9938 or at Do Re Mi, the Barnyard, Center Stage and Carmel Music Company. This concert and the remaining four concerts, including the January Yo-Yo Ma/Emanuel AX concert, may be all obtained for the same price as the Ma-Ax concert.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detoro

Talent advisory

MONTEREY BAY Blues Festival has made known appointments to its new Talent Advisory Committee.

The group's formation comes as a positive response to criticism that surfaced following the 1988 election. In print and private, certain observers thought traditional Soul performers outnumbered real Blues people by far.

Nominees came from the community and the festival board's knowledge of the media scene hereabouts. Appointment letters signed by Fest Manager Lou Rudolph now have been received by music columnist Matthew Arnett, Ron Daniels (longtime technical consultant and producer for concerts), this writer, television exec and Blues buff Hal Larson, honcho Gil Wisdom of KRML Radio, highly knowledgeable deejay Bill Greenwell.

These names have been in the air for several weeks at least. Lou had said letters would not be sent out until each nominee had agreed to serve. Actual appointments were made by Fest President Billy DeBerry.

The group will work as volunteers under the leadership of board member Bill Jackson. Mandate: "to review appropriate Blues artists and recommend to the Board of Directors a suggested show 'menu' that best incorporates the (fest) philosophy."

Committee members will get a budget figure to work with. An organizational session will be called in the near future.

Dates of the 1989 Monterey Bay Blues Festival—June 24-25.

ANYTHING I write about The Leaders must be dedicated to eight-month-old Alejandro and master bassist Cecil McBee.

An interview occurred at Yoshi's jazz club in Oakland. The Leaders are six of this nation's brightest musicians—Cecil, Chico Freeman, Lester Bowie, Kirk Lightsey, Arthur Blythe, Don Moye. Since honest men can afford to be funny, they're extremely witty. Any one of The Leaders would demand an interviewer's best. I was sitting there, notebook open, questions written, with all six.

More than once, Cecil stopped the whirling banter with replies that were precise, gently amused, kind to the jazz journalist. Fortunately, I'd arrived an hour early and so had time with Alejandro. His mother's the reservationist at Yoshi's; the phone was ringing off the hook on Saturday afternoon (folks wanting to hear The Leaders that night); Alejandro was crying for attention. The baby and I went over by the Yamaha grand piano and made faces and laughed a lot and picked out a pretty Coltrane line. He brought me into the absolute present and loaned great trust and hearty innocence. The perfect prep period for a word-session with half a dozen genius types.

Their second album (on the Black Saint label) contained a lot of love for old jazz soldiers like Tadd Dameron and Thad Jones and Chico's tenorman father: Von Freeman. Was this a matter of upfront choosing?

Arthur: "We are this kind of person—in the tradition. No decision was required. When we start playing, we're drawn to the values of these men. It's like corn bread having corn meal."

Kirk: "We can't help it."

Cecil: "The masters would turn over in their graves if they heard anything else."

About the album's humor Chico said: "This's the way we are. We use all the tools gathered over the years. Spontaneously."

Arthur took off on a wildly satirical rap, satirizing simplistic questions or perhaps pompous replies to brief questions. "Let us consider totals. Some things must be calculated—that is, areas of spontaneous in-put have an outreaching core of organic implementation—"

Don to the portly Arthur: "Don't confuse girth with worth."

Cecil: "He means that what we do is not totally by chance...Collectively, when we approach the stage, the music is waiting for us. It's there to discover—we haven't tapped it yet but are capable of reaching. The Spirit of Music. You're at its mercy."

Arthur (calmly now): "It's trying to cultivate the gift within, given by The Maker, with humility."

Kirk: "Music's the strongest force. It goes right to the energy seat of emotion."

Lester: "About 25-30 years ago, critics made us jazz players political because discussing the music got beyond them. Bebop got too heavy for them so they said—Let's talk about something else."

Kirk: "The music's always there. Sometimes your instrument slaps you around at first."

Cecil: "If you don't play the instrument, it will turn around and play you."

Arthur: "Someone pigeonholed us as playing weird. As a kid, I was influenced by dance and melody. Melody. Dance. We're deeply in the tradition. And it's still the African tradition."

Kirk: "You can think of us as The Dancing Bears."

Chico: "This band cooperates. One can't be a good leader without being a good follower. We have egos but not ego problems. We listen. Find your place in the music and the music tells you what to do."

This level of richness was maintained for about two hours. Arthur on critics: "Why don't they just ask about what they don't know? What they don't know doesn't steal from what they do know."

Don: "If we surprise some people, good. It's good when surprise is still possible."

Alejandro's mother waved goodbye to everyone, the smiling boy-child on her hip.

The Leaders have a new album in the works. Look for it come springtime.

CONCEPT ALBUMS often show the strain of maintaining themes over a time-frame prescribed by industry formulas. Just the opposite's true of pianist Tommy Flanagan's Thelonica package—done for Enja Records and marketed by Polygram Classics. It brings forth tender conception and brilliant execution; the balances and beauties let listeners know that wanting more would be a bit greedy; like a kiss it's exactly as long as it needs to be.

Other jazz keyboardists acknowledge Flanagan this way: state-of-the-art. He did the session in wintertime 1982 with bassist George Mraz and Art Taylor on drums. Tommy offers two solo versions of his title composition, which joins the names of Thelonius Monk and Manhattan jazz patron Pannonica de Koenigswarter. The back cover contains a joyous photo of Monk and Nica walking arm-in-arm through autumnal Central Park. Flanagan: "Nica is known in the jazz world for her appreciation and understanding of many important jazz musicians and their music. She has been a generous and concerned friend to some of the greatest, including Thelonius, his wife Nellie and their children. The relationship of Nica and Thelonius was unique, however, and it is to their relationship that this album is lovingly and gratefully dedicated."

All the other tunes here are Monk's, his famed Pannonica among them. Horace Silver wrote Nica's Dream about her. From Gigi Gryce came Nica's Tempo. These return to mind because memorial services for Baroness Nica were held last Sunday at St. Peter's Church. She died in the hospital. Heart failure. Age 74.

Nica came from the British branch of the Rothschilds. She fell in love with jazz as a teenager and moved onto the New York scene in the early '50s. Going stone deaf when her family spoke against certain associations, she (along with her daughter and personal physician) cared for Charles Parker during Bird's last days.

Nica's failing health was signalled when pianist Barry Harris cancelled his West Coast tour to be at her bedside. She had aided his Jazz Cultural Theater, which houses concerts and offers music lessons to youngsters of the welfare hotels.

On the same day that Nica died, Monk's former colleague—superb tenorman Charlie Rouse—gave up the ghost in Seattle. Cancer. Age 64.

Charlie's reputation began to build in 1944 when he went with the Billy Eckstine Orchestra (including Bird, Dizzy, Sarah Vaughan, Lucky Thompson). He was known for his highly individualistic solos and lush tone.

He and Monk developed their fascinating musical interplay between 1959-70. After Thelonius died, Charlie organized the group Sphere (Monk's middle name) to play his friend's compositions. He also fronted the Upper Manhattan Jazz Society. As writer, his best-known tune probably is Little Sherry. Ben Sidran added lyrics and recorded it during a recent session with Phil Woods and Eddie Gomez.

Finally, the false rumor that Bobby McFerrin had died ran through various San Francisco newsrooms just a few days ago. Bobby's alive and well. The man's simply keeping a promise to his family—one year off from concert and studio work.

Bobby's manager—Linda Goldstein—fielded lots of calls connected to that rumor. By now she should have finalized a book deal that'll net Bob $100,000 or so.

Publishing sources say the title will be based on his monster hit Don't Worry, Be Happy. One format under discussion reportedly would ask "numerous personalities" to reflect upon the tune's theme.

AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Am attracts new celebrities

THE AT&T PEBBLE BEACH National Pro-Am announced additional celebrities who will journey to the Monterey Peninsula in January to compete for the first time in the tournament.

Bill Borland, chairman of the Monterey Peninsula Golf Foundation, which stages the tournament, said confirmations have been received from newcomers Bob Eubanks, Kevin Dobson and Richard Chaves. That trio, each of whom will be paired with a professional golfer, will join such returning personalities as Jack Lemmon, Ken Howard and Hal Linden, who also have confirmed their appearances at the 1989 event.

"The addition of Bob, Kevin and Richard is part of our ongoing effort to attract new celebrity talent to the tournament while continuing to welcome the celebrities and friends who have helped us become one of the best stops on the PGA Tour," said Borland.

"I think they'll be a real hit with spectators," he added, noting that crowds in 1988 helped the tournament raise more than $1 million for charity—a record amount.

Eubanks, known for years to television viewers as the host of "The Newlywed Game", currently hosts the game show "Card Sharks," and will soon emcee a new morning game show, "Celebrity Secrets."

Dobson, who played the role of "Crocker" in the smash hit "Kojak," is more familiar to current television audiences as "Mac McKenzie" in the television series, "Knots Landing."

Chaves, currently stars as "Lt. Col. Paul Ironhorse" in the weekly hit series "War of the Worlds." The young actor also has appeared in the films "Predator" and "Cease Fire."

While celebrities and professional golfers continue to confirm their participation in the event, golf fans and celebrity-watchers have only a few weeks left to take advantage of a ticket discount available for those who plan ahead.

The deadline for purchasing pre-season badges is Dec. 31. Spectators who purchase badges by that date may do so for $60; the price increases to $75, on Jan. 1. The badge gives the holder admittance to all seven days of the tournament, including practice and tournament rounds. The event will take place Jan. 23-29 on three courses—Pebble Beach, Spyglass Hill and Cypress Point.

Tickets may be purchased within California by calling 1-800-541-9091, from outside California, by calling 1-408-372-4711.

The 1989 AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am will be televised by CBS Sports on Jan. 28 and 29, and by USA Cable Network on Jan. 27.

Artwork owned by Monterey to go on exhibit

An opportunity to view works by regional artists owned by the City of Monterey will be provided in an exhibition opening in the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art's Asian Gallery on Saturday, Dec. 17. Many of these works had hung in private offices or are in storage, and were unavailable for public viewing.

On display will be works by such prominent regional and California artists as Ferdinand Burgdorf, Charles Dickman, Arthur Hill Gilbert, Armin Hansen, Charles Chapel Judson, William Keith, Arthur Matthews, Francis McComas, Evelyn McCormick, Charles Christian Nahl, Gottardo Piazzoni, Charles Rollo and Constance Peters, and William Ritschel.

The exhibit also features work by American artists George Inness, Dwight Tryon and Alexander Wyant. The exhibition is comprised mainly of paintings of historic architecture of the Monterey Peninsula, landscapes, nocturnes and marine subjects. Also included are Charles

Christian Nahl's "The Grizzly Bear of California" and Arthur Matthews' "The Dancers."

This exhibition will help viewers increase their awareness and appreciation for the art historical heritage of this area. The exhibition is supported in part through a grant from the City of Monterey's Revenue Sharing program, administered through the cultural Arts Commission, and will continue on display through Feb. 12.

PUBLIC NOTICE

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA CITY COUNCIL

ORDINANCE NO. 88-32

AN URGENCY ORDINANCE ESTABLISHING PARKING REGULATIONS IN ALL COMMERCIAL DISTRICTS AND THE R-4 DISTRICT.

WHEREAS, the City's General Plan was amended in April 1988; and WHEREAS, the Circulation Element of the General Plan requires the City to prepare a comprehensive Parking Management Plan to resolve this issue of long standing in the community; and

WHEREAS, the Circulation Element also calls for the City to adopt realistic parking standards to reflect the demand from various uses; and WHEREAS, the Planning Commission has recommended to the City Council that efforts to prepare a long-range parking plan begin as soon as possible; and

WHEREAS, gathering the information needed and reaching a consensus in the community on this issue is expected to take significant time and human resources; and

WHEREAS, until such a long-range plan is established the City must process permits for commercial development in the absence of any standards that are based on parking studies or other evidence in the record; and

WHEREAS, in 1986 the City commissioned a detailed study of parking demand on which ordinance standards can be based; and

WHEREAS, adoption of an interim ordinance establishing revised parking standards based on evidence in the record from the 1986 parking study will provide the City with a reasonable set of standards consistent with the General Plan until the Parking Management Plan is fully developed; and

WHEREAS, without such standards the City is at risk of approving additional development that may be inconsistent with the General Plan, NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section One. The following text shall amend Chapter 17.34 of the Municipal Code in its entirety:

17.34.010 PURPOSE. It is the purpose of this Chapter to require off-street parking for vehicles to lessen the parking congestion on the public streets and to leave street parking available to persons making short-term visits to the commercial district for shopping, business or related activities.

The provisions of this chapter are intended to:

- Provide clear standards for parking requirements.
- Provide parking requirements that are appropriate for specified land uses.
- Provide for flexibility in meeting parking requirements.
- Ensure that parking requirements are consistent with the land use goals of the community.
- Discourage unnecessary curb cuts and the loss of street parking spaces through the construction of driveways downtown.

17.34.020 GENERAL REQUIREMENTS.

The Table in subsection A herein below establishes the minimum parking requirements for all uses, projects, developments and redevelopments.

New projects or developments shall only be allowed when meeting all parking requirements of this Chapter and the requirements of any use permit, subdivision approval or Specific Plan applicable to the property. Proposed uses within existing buildings may replace existing uses as long as any existing parking deficiencies on the property are not increased by the replacement. Proposed additions of floor area, new shops or dwelling units, or other similar changes in land use resulting in a net increase in parking requirements, as set forth in this Chapter, shall provide all required parking generated by the new activities on the site.

Whenever a proposed activity requires the provision of additional parking spaces, the City shall establish a record for the property listing the number of spaces required by the proposed change and the manner in which the increased parking requirements has been satisfied.

Any proposed new buildings, or any substantial replacement or reconstruction of an existing building, shall provide all parking required by the provisions of this Chapter. Replacement or construction shall be deemed substantial if the value of the new construction equals or exceeds 50% of the construction value of the existing building.

TABLE A: MINIMUM PARKING REQUIREMENTS

Land Use	Basis for Requirement	Land Use District Parking Factors
		CC	EC	RC	RI
Permanent residential use (apartments, etc.)	Spaces per unit	1	1	1.5	1.5
Senior housing, cooperative housing or group care facilities.	Spaces per dwelling unit	1/3	1/3	1/3	1/3
	Guest spaces per each four full units	1	1	1	1
Nursing home or other resident care facility	Spaces per patient or resident	N/A	1/3	1/3	1/3
Commercial retail or service uses not otherwise specified in this table.	Spaces per 600 square feet of commercial floor area or per business/shop space, whichever is greater.	1	1	1	1
SIC 701: Transient residential uses (hotel and motels).	Spaces per rental unit, including manager's unit.	1	1	1	1

A. Explanation of Minimum Parking Table.

Table A establishes the minimum amount of parking required for most land uses and land use districts. The Planning Commission shall review proposed projects for their anticipated parking demand and may require additional parking through use permit conditions if substantial evidence supports the need for providing parking beyond the minimum standard.

When the symbol N/A appears in the table, the land use specified in that row is not an allowed use within the land use district corresponding to that column. Existing legal nonconforming uses within these N/A categories shall not be increased or enlarged in any manner that would result in a need for increased parking spaces using the "Basis for Requirements" listed in the table. When evaluating parking requirements for such nonconforming uses, the parking requirement shall be the same as the maximum requirement applicable in any land use district in which the land use is allowed and for which parking is required.

B. Fractional Spaces.

When parking is to be physically provided on-site or off-site and a determination of the minimum required parking for the project or use results in one or more full spaces plus a fraction of an additional parking space, a full space shall be provided for the fractional space or the fractional space shall be met through fractional in-lieu payments as set forth below.

2. When parking requirements are met through the payment of in-lieu fees or a combination of in-lieu fees and off street parking, and a determination of the minimum required parking results in one or more full spaces plus a fraction of an additional parking space, the in-lieu payment shall include a full fee for each full space plus a fractional fee proportional to the fractional space.

C. Minimum Off-Street Parking.

It is recognized that providing parking on some sites will result in the loss of existing or potential on-street parking spaces due to the location of driveways or other improvements. Therefore, off-street parking shall only be allowed when the cumulative effect of providing such parking will result in a net gain of total parking spaces. When any determination of the minimum required parking for a project or use results in a need for only one space, and parking is being physically provided off-street, two full spaces shall be required unless the applicant can demonstrate a reconfiguration of on-street spaces, consistent with guidelines maintained by the Department of Public Works for street parking, that yields a net gain in total available parking when only one off-street space is provided.

D. Properties Located in More Than One District. For projects located on property falling within two or more land use districts with different parking standards, the parking requirement shall be determined by using the parking standards applicable to that portion of the development lying within each of the land use districts involved.

E. Design Standards. The following standards shall apply to all surface and underground parking designs.

1. Dimensions — Standard spaces: 9 feet by 20 feet.

Compact spaces: 8½ feet by 16 feet.

For all parking area designs with parking spaces perpendicular to vehicle travel lanes, a minimum of 24 feet shall be provided for automobile back-up room behind standard spaces and 18 feet behind compact spaces. Designs shall minimize the need for multiple or complex turning movements. Where angled parking is used, the minimum back-up room shall be that distance specified in the current edition of Architectural Graphic Standards.

2. Compact Ratio — Compact spaces may constitute 50% of the total required spaces. All spaces provided in excess of the minimum requirements may be compact spaces.

3. Driveways — Driveways shall be located to preserve as much on-street curb parking as possible. Driveways and other improvements on the property shall be designed for safe and unobstructed visibility of pedestrians and automobile traffic both on and off the site.

4. Design Review — all parking, whether on-site or off-site, shall be subject to design review in conformance with Section 17.10.170, Chapter 17.40 and all provisions of this Chapter.

F. Surface Parking Design. The following standards apply to the design of surface parking in addition to those required by section E, above:

1. Setbacks — Surface parking spaces shall not be constructed within required setback areas. Portions of rear or side setback areas may be used for back-up movements as long as the majority of the setback is landscaped.

2. Landscaping — Building sites incorporating surface parking lots shall include at least 15% of the site area in landscaping. Landscaping shall be distributed along all street frontages and pedestrian walkways that are adjacent to parking areas to help screen parked automobiles from view. Plant species and/or planters should be designed to achieve a height of at least five feet above the surface of the parking lot except where this would conflict with safe visibility or good site design.

Landscaping shall also be provided within the interior of surface lots to break up large expanses of paving. Parking lots with four or more vehicles shall provide interior landscaping of at least 10 square feet per vehicle and one tree per each four vehicles.

G. Underground Parking Design. The following standards apply to underground parking garages in addition to those required by section E, above:

1. Height — for that portion of an underground garage facing any public street, way, place or park, the maximum height of the finished floor level above an underground parking garage shall not be higher than five feet above the existing grade or the official street grade whichever measurement results in the lower height.

The maximum height of the finished floor level above an underground garage shall not be higher than eight feet above the surface of the ground adjacent to any exterior wall around the full perimeter of the garage. Garages not meeting these two standards shall be counted as a story.

2. Setbacks — Underground parking garages may be constructed within required setbacks if significant trees will not be removed or injured and the setback can still be effectively landscaped. Underground garage designs should provide sufficient room around the perimeter to accommodate existing and new tree root systems.

3. Driveways — The grade of driveways providing access to underground garages shall not exceed 5% in the first ten feet of the driveway slope near the entry and shall not exceed 10% in the last 10 feet near the level of the garage floor. The intervening grade shall not exceed 25%. Driveway designs shall provide sufficient area to allow drivers to view automobile and pedestrian traffic before merging into such traffic.

4. Ventilation and Access — Garages shall be ventilated to avoid the build-up of exhaust gases. When mechanical ventilation is used, noise mitigation measures shall be incorporated such as low-noise fans, insulated ductwork and vibration absorbing mounting systems. Ducts shall not exhaust toward any openings or open space on any adjoining property nor toward any on-site or off-site way, street, place or park accessible to the public. Plans for the underground garages shall be reviewed to ensure accessibility for Police and Fire Department personnel during emergencies.

17.34.030 EXCEPTIONS.

It is recognized that some sites, due to size, shape, topography, existing buildings, the availability of land suitable for parking purposes or location within specific land use districts, may have difficulty in meeting all parking requirements. Therefore, the following exceptions are provided to increase the flexibility in meeting parking requirements.

A. On-Site Parking in the CC Land Use District.

In contrast to the other districts within the City, on-site parking is prohibited in the Central Commercial Land Use District. This policy eliminates the need for curb cuts in sidewalks and the interference with free pedestrian traffic flow that would result from an excessive number of driveways. This policy is also intended to enhance the opportunities for creating intra-block courts and walkways between properties and buildings.

B. Use of Another Site.

Parking requirements may be fulfilled by supplying the required parking on another site upon approval of a use permit. When use of another site for parking is authorized, such parking shall be located within the commercial district on property permitting such use. The land area required to provide such parking shall be legally committed for the full life of the structure for which the parking is required. The legal commitment shall be of such a nature that it cannot be withdrawn for the life of the structure, without the consent of the City.

Applicants applying for approval of a use permit authorizing the use of another site for parking purposes must demonstrate one of the following conditions:

- The property owners of two or more adjacent properties have proposed a combined development plan to provide the required parking for their properties, in accordance with the parking standards established in this Chapter, on part of the several sites involved.
- The project site for which the parking requirement applies is 5,000 square feet or less in size and has less than fifty feet of street frontage.
- The construction of required driveway(s) for on-site parking would result in the excessive loss of curb parking on-street.
- The topography, size, shape or other peculiar conditions of the site or the existing development on the site would make the provision of on-site parking impractical.

5. The site for which parking is required is located within the Central Commercial Land Use District where on-site parking is prohibited.

C. Parking Adjustment In-Lieu Fees.

The Planning Commission may authorize the satisfaction of parking requirements through the granting of a use permit and the payment of in-lieu fees when on-site parking is not practical or when on-site parking is prohibited by City policies. Parking adjustments shall not decrease the number of parking spaces required by this Chapter. The practicality of providing parking on-site shall be evaluated by using the criteria set forth in conditions 2 through 4 in subsection B herein above. Standards for participation in the In-Lieu Fee Program are established below in section 17.34.040.

Applicants for use permits authorizing the use of in-lieu fees to adjust on-site parking shall also demonstrate both of the following:

- The parking for which the adjustment is sought is not required for serving hotel or motel uses.
- The applicant has diligently pursued meeting the parking requirements both on-site and off-site, but has been unsuccessful in meeting the requirement, or that the site is located within the Central Commercial Land Use District where on-site parking is prohibited.

17.34.040 PARKING IN-LIEU FEE PROGRAM.

When parking adjustments have been authorized by the Planning Commission in conformance with Section 17.34.030 (C), required parking may be satisfied by the payment to the City of in-lieu fees. Funds collected by the City from such payments shall be deposited in a specific fund and used by the City to acquire and/or develop off-street parking. Such parking shall be available to the public and shall be in or near the business district of the City. Funds paid to the City for in-lieu parking shall not be refundable, in the event of destruction or removal of the structure or land use for which the funds were paid, but shall run with the land. The City shall maintain a record of all spaces credited to each property including all spaces paid through in-lieu fees, spaces physically provided on each property and all spaces represented by the existing parking nonconformity on each site.

A. Payment of In-Lieu Fees.

All in-lieu parking fees shall be paid prior to the issuance of any license or permit by the city including a building permit with one exception. The only exception arises when the number of in-lieu parking spaces exceeds five, in which case at least forty percent of total in-lieu fees shall be paid prior to the issuance of any license or permit and the balance shall be paid prior to the occupancy and final inspection of the buildings.

All parking fees not paid upon issuance of the first project permit or license shall accrue interest at the rate of three percent (3%) above the prime interest rate or the maximum rate legally permitted, whichever is less, fixed on the date the first permit or license is issued. Any fees, including interest, that will be subject to such delayed payments shall be evidenced by a promissory note. This promissory note shall provide for the payment of attorney's fees and costs to the prevailing party and shall be secured by a deed of trust.

B. Determination of Value of Parking In-Lieu Fees.

The amount to be charged for an in-lieu parking space shall be determined by using the current construction costs for public garages having Type I or Type II fire resistance and the regional modifier for the San Francisco area as supplied by the "Building Standards" of the International Conference of Building Officials and a factor representing land costs.

Four hundred square feet shall be used as the necessary area for a car to park and have maneuvering room with ingress and egress. The current construction costs per square foot shall be multiplied by the modifier to determine the cost per square foot to construct a parking space and the product of that multiplication shall be multiplied by four hundred to find the cost to construct the parking space. The cost of constructing the parking space shall then be increased by fifty percent (50%) to reflect land cost. This total shall be the amount paid for each full in-lieu parking space.

SECTION TWO: The Required Finding in Section 17.18.180 (D) shall be replaced by the following text:

D. That parking will be provided to serve all new development on the site consistent with the provisions of Chapter 17.34.

SECTION THREE: Paragraphs one and two of section 17.12.110 (B-7) shall be replaced by the text appearing in section 17.34.030 (F-2) herein, above.

SECTION FOUR: Severability. If any part of this ordinance is found to be unenforceable, such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

SECTION FIVE: Effective Date. This ordinance is hereby declared to be an urgency ordinance as established in section 65858 of the California Government Code. This ordinance shall take effect immediately upon approval by at least a four-fifths vote of the City Council and shall remain effective for ten (10) months and fifteen (15) days unless repealed or extended as established by State Statute. The terms and provisions of this ordinance shall apply to all projects in all Commercial Districts and the R-4 Districts that have not yet received at least one discretionary approval for a use permit or design review. Any project or application for which at least one discretionary approval has been granted by the Planning Commission or the City Council shall be allowed to continue through normal permit processes and to project completion.

SECTION SIX: Statement of Urgency. The City Council finds that there is a current and immediate threat to public health safety and welfare from continued approvals of projects that do not supply adequate parking to meet the demand generated by such projects. The Council also finds that the Circulation Element of the General Plan requires the development of a comprehensive Parking Management Plan to address the full range of issues and solutions to parking problems in Carmel-by-the-Sea. Until such a plan can be adopted, there is an immediate need to enact interim parking standards that are consistent with the General Plan so that the approval of new projects does not exacerbate parking problems in the absence of a permanent ordinance. Failure to address these problems may degrade the quality of life and the environment enjoyed by the residents of the City, increase congestion and conflict with the General Plan.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA
CITY COUNCIL
ORDINANCE NO. 88-24

AN ORDINANCE PROHIBITING TRANSIENT USE OF RESIDENTIAL REAL PROPERTY FOR COMMERCIAL PURPOSES IN THE R-1 LAND USE DISTRICT.

WHEREAS, in February 1988, the City adopted a revised General Plan; and

WHEREAS, the overall goal of the plan as stated in the General Plan G1-1, "Continue to preserve and maintain the predominance of the residential character in Carmel through appropriate zoning and land development regulations in all districts"; and

WHEREAS, in order to further that goal, Policy P1-37 states, "Review and develop measures to restrict commercial short-term rental of single-family residences in the R-1 district"; and Policy P3-12 states, "Preserve existing permanent housing and maintain the vital residential character of Carmel-by-the-Sea. Prohibit expansion of visitor-oriented commercial use such as transient rentals"; and

WHEREAS, Policy P3-12 of the Housing Element states, "Preserve existing permanent housing and maintain the vital residential character of Carmel-by-the-Sea. Prohibit expansion of visitor-oriented commercial uses such as transient rentals"; and

WHEREAS, Policy P3-18 of the Housing Element states, "Encourage the conversion of commercial transient housing to housing for permanent residents"; and

WHEREAS, Government Code Section 65860 states that "zoning ordinances shall be consistent with the General Plan"; and

WHEREAS, the City Council believes that the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea provides sufficient housing for transient visitors, with nine hundred and fifty legal transient units in existence in a community of five thousand and twenty permanent residents; and

WHEREAS, the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea finds that:

1. The purpose of the R-1 Land Use District as established in Chapter 17.24 of the Land Use Code is to provide an appropriate land area within the City for permanent single-family residential uses and structures and to enhance and maintain the residential character of the City; and

2. The transient use of residential real property for bed and breakfast, inn, motel, hotel, resort or transient lodging purposes is found to be a commercial use and is thereby inconsistent with the purposes and objectives of the R-1 Land Use District; and

3. Transient use of residential real property for commercial purposes creates unmitigable adverse impacts on surrounding residential uses including, but not limited to, increased levels of automobile traffic, light and glare, noise and parking detrimental to surrounding residential uses and the general welfare of the City; and

4. Prohibiting transient use of residential real property for commercial purposes in the R-1 Land Use District and restricting such uses to sites authorized or permitted by the Municipal Code is necessary to maintain the integrity of the R-1 Land Use District; and

5. After consideration of alternative means of achieving the objectives and intent of this ordinance, it is determined that no effective means of achieving the objective herein enumerated exists except by enactment of this ordinance.
